GEORGE WASHINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

VOLUME XXIX

DANVILLE, VIRGINIA

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS

Within These Pages Flow Varied Currents of Activity,

Danville. Dan River Mills. The Dan River. George Washington High School. Names fraught with meaning for all students, whether they be freshmen, sophomores, juniors or seniors. How many times has there been wonder about and appreciation of one of nature's most beautiful and most useful creations — a river? Throughout the centuries rivers have played a key role in man's survival and progress.

Fortunately, GW-ites, as citizens of a prospering Danville, have a sort of personalized river to call their own — the Dan River. This illustrious body of water borders on the campus of GWHS and is viewed daily by students and faculty alike. As various streams flow in to feed the Dan, to form and intensify this bubbling mass, so does George Washington contain a conglomeration of numerous and varied individuals from the junior high schools. Furthermore, as the river rushes ever on toward the open mouth, anticipating the sea, GW-ites are continually pushing onward, nearing the highest goal — graduation.

For the students as for the river, there is a glorious past and inspiring present. The river's progress can be noted, the mighty whole being the culmination of tinkling streams. Daily accomplishments in student life gradually, through devious channels of activity, produce the seasoned graduate. As the river's moods are unpredictable and provocative, so are the ambitions and hopes of GW's people. Challenging best describes the prospects of the river and the student, these prospects being closely interwoven with Danville.

RIVERS

Rushing . . . rambling . . . roaring but steadily flowing, the river curves and sways around bends, while students endlessly pour into and out of GW's crowded corridors.

As spring rains swell the river, so do continuing streams — made up of classes and more classes, memorable social events, term papers, election campaigns, picnics, exams and the excitement of graduation — fill and augment the academic situation. Spring '67 thus is more than a page torn from the calendar. The warp and woop of '68 find a basis in the memorable events of spring days.

Summer follows . . . and with it relaxation . . . work . . . mental stimulation. The lazy movement of the river typifies the thoughts of the daydreamers, the carefully measured concept development of the student in summer school.

With the river back in its regular course in the fall, so life at GW returns to routine. Students prepare for the year ahead with renewed zest.

Water fills and enriches a river; students compose and activate a school. GW-ites . . . individualists . . . thinkers . . . workers . . . leaders and followers . . . all contribute to the GW of which Danville is justly proud.

AUDITORIUM

BLUEBLUEBLUEBLUEBLUEBLUEBLUEBLUEBLUEBLUEBLUE

Gently sloping hills of bluegreen grass, sprinkled with dandelions . . . dreamy-eyed students lazily shifting along . . . sunshine streaming into classrooms . . . lunchers lounging on the Christopher Lane campus . . . It's spring, spring, spring at GW! And, of course, there is the Blue of remembrance! Spring '67 is an important beginning to Senior book of memories.

Food and fun, fun and food — there is plenty of both as upperclassmen attend the Junior-Senior banquet. Peals of laughter echo when the Sophomore Waiters and Waitresses present a hilarious skit, a modern interpretation of fairy tales.

Junior Marshals proudly lead Senior Class members to their seats on Class Day. In true empathy, juniors, as third-year students of a Great GW, share the feeling of the upper, upperclassmen — sadness in leaving, pleasure in reminiscing, and anticipation in the challenge of the future. Shiny eyes glitter with tears as the robe-clad Seniors get diplomas.

PARTYING JUNIORS AND Seniors pass along the morsel-filled table satisfying their hunger.

AMONG THE HIGHLIGHTS (below) of Spring '67 was the arrival of CAVALIER '67 with its pictorial record of all the "greats." Miss Josephine Estes, business staff advisor, was literally into boxes and paper "up to the neck" in an effort to quickly satisfy the curious, waiting subscribers.

WBTM

IT'S A GREAT BACK CAMPUS, WHETHER IT BE FOR LUNCHTIME, LAZINESS OR LAST MINUTE STUDY!

AN UNUSUALLY CALM and peaceful atmosphere prompts summer "intellectuality" as Lawrence Whitney, Paul Nunn, George Brooks and Donnie Davis add to their storehouse of knowledge.

A GOVERNMENT TEACHER (Mr. Tom Houser) beats the clock at 8:14 as he boldly strides into his classroom, with morning coffee cup and all.

GREENGREENGREEN

Whoopee! School's out! Shouts of glee . . . maybe a few sobs . . . burst forth as merry students pick up report cards on the last day of school, anticipating summer fun!

But there is work ahead for those who plan on summer school. These "scholars" find time, though, to take a refreshing swim, to exercise in a fast game of tennis, or even just to relax, soaking up the sun. Some college-bound GW-ites, applying for early decision, find themselves taking tests in August! These achievement tests and college boards seem a strange midsummer activity for underclassmen and seniors.

Left, right, left, right, left . . . left . . . left . . . the Kilties, Majorettes, and Lettergirls march rhythmically to the steady beat of the band, practicing new routines for the rapidly-approaching fall activities. Also preparing for up-coming school events, cheerleaders and football players are hard at work in late August sessions. Shouts of "Yea Cards" and "hut . . . 2 . . .3" burst through the summer stillness, the spirited jingles and jargons giving promise of the valuable pep-rally support.

As lively, tanned, rambunctious GW-ites return from vacationing, an end comes to summer fun and relaxation. But all is not lost because a new year lies ahead. Students soon react positively to the knowledge that there are vital "doors" to be opened, and greener pastures beyond.

. . . "AND THE GUARANTEE ran out yesterday!" pants Principal J. T. Christopher during an unusually hot, humid summer school session. These modern conveniences can confuse.

ANTICIPATING A VACATION to Mexico, Mrs. Evelyn Baker, Book rental administrator, studies a map with Judy Cardwell co-worker. She is already collecting those "musical shakers!"

SUMMER SCHOOL BRINGS with it a variety of attire for the students, since at times there may be damp, drewey and even cool mornings. Day's end and there's the rush for bus!

[illegible] WITH A [illegible] [illegible] Athle[illegible] [illegible] Pappas, and Mike [illegible] [illegible]

There's confusion. Fun. Laughter through the hallowed halls of GW! Students once again return, along with Autumn's kaleidoscopic color spectrum, anticipating a fresh start in the 1967-1968 school year. GW-ites settle down to a regular schedule after glimpsing strange faces, tackling scores of books, and entering stimulating classes .

Excited hushed whispers, gasps of surprise, and cries of joy echo throughout the auditorium during the NHS tapping when twenty deserving seniors and ten hardworking juniors were tapped into NHS. Inspired, students leave with a new zest and a firm desire to work more diligently.

Bus trips . . . Shrine game . . . the fair . . . excite students. The cry of "Thunder, thunderation, we're the Cardinal Delegation" chimes throughout the city as the first seasonal football game approaches. The band strikes up a happy tune. The Kilties, Lettergirls, and Majorettes do a lively routine to the strains of "Georgie Girl" at the first home game.

Bright lights sparkle, tawdry colors flash, candied odors permeate, as monied students enter the gates of the Great Danville Fair, eager to hop on dare-devil rides, anxious to look at interesting exhibits, and ready to squander hard-saved money. But they go out with cotton-candy in their hair, popcorn in their pockets, flushed cheeks, and a jubilant smile. Broke!

Sprinkled with a haze of soft fall colors the GW campus glows in the cooling sunlight. With only a few warm days left, Jack Frost is just around the corner.

FACTS AND FANCIES FASCINATE STUDENTS OF MR. RALPH WALL AT THE "BIG GAME."

OPENING DAY OF [illegible] [illegible] plant finds all Senior government students touring assembly lines and checking automation. The newest techniques are observed by Larry Baker, [illegible] Pruett, Bill Moore, Freddie [illegible], Ed Dixon, K[illegible] [illegible], Allen Garretts and Casper Reynolds.

PRETTY GIRLS, HIGH spirits! In the Homecoming parade, gracing two entries, were Katherine Carter and Karen Shields (left), Frannie Carter, Beverly Hurd, Barbara Hall, Vickie Fawlkes, Ellen Hendersan and Kathy Young.

STELLA ROLES FOR Homecoming weekend! Robert Anderson, Goil Lawton, 1st Runner-Up; Lou Prete, Sydney Soger, 1st Attendant; Mike Kilgare, Kaye Jones, Homecoming Queen; Chuck Rawley, Lindy Koplen, 2nd Attendant; Rick Bendoll, Moureen Love, 2nd Runner-Up.

TWO COACHES AND TIRED TEAM TAKE BRIEF TIME-OUT INTERVAL AT THE BIG GAME.

DURING THE FALL, a highlight is always the assembly which features a National Honor Society tapping. Glances of envy, smiles of admiration and looks of surprise were on the faces of well-wishers when proudly berobed Mike Fitzpatrick tapped a lucky, jubilant, exuberant Albert Payne.

"WILL ALL CLUB members report to the auditorium steps for a quick picture."

"WE'RE NEXT IN line . . . are you sure my hair looks okay . . . is my make-up on right?"

ANDY BRIDGFORTH GIVES Robert brotherly advice. "That's one way to score!"

"SHAKE!" SAM COX (CTS), Margaret Berkley (CAVALIER) make peace after contest.

"HEY, HOW ABOUT you girls moving back one row . . . better make that two!"

"STEP IT UP a little bit; it's a long walk to the cafeteria — and I'm hungry."

NOT ONLY ARE these industrious students earning money, but they are getting on-the-job training! James Stratton, Joan Ledford, Jackie Jackson, Harvey Jacobs anticipate their Christmas spendings.

COZINESS OF THE language laboratory (with its neat, efficient little private booths) is especially nice on a cold, dreary winter's day. Constant efforts to improve facilities and opportunities are reflected in the modern set-up.

WHITEWHITEWHITEWHITEWHITEWHITEWHITEWHITEWHITEWHITEWHITE

Dramatic talent bursts into full bloom with the presentation of the Senior play. Students also get a taste of sophisticated dramatic achievement when professional actors and actresses perform in "School for Wives."

Grateful hearts are in evidence as Thanksgiving holidays neared. A number of GW-ites start working at Thanksgiving for their Christmas jobs and are aided by the special one-week job training class held after school by the DE department.

"I'm dreaming of a white Christmas," resounds as excited students glimpse the first flake of snow. Students strolling down the halls of GW view brightly decorated doors — even some mistletoe! SCA representatives place festive, decorated boxes of goodies under the tree for needy families during the traditional Christmas Assembly. Foreign language classes attempt to sing carols and laughingly wind up with the wrong beat and sometimes the wrong sound! But the Concert Choir makes up for these gay amateurs with their moving presentation of sacred songs and X-mas carols.

Warmth and friendliness engulf the school. Homeroom parties and special club celebrations close the last week of school before the much anticipated two-week vacation promising even more and better festivities.

Oops! Exam time already! "Students, you've had your fun — now to work." GW-ites crowd into the library, fill empty rooms, and clutter the halls as they study, cram, and grab last minute bits of information.

Leafless trees and stubbled, frost-bitten grass surround the school. Inside, life goes on merrily and bubbles with spirit as the new semester offers hope and opportunity to those who learn the hard way: "Good grades don't come easy." (Worse luck!)

WHY IS IT that it always seems to be the package on top that the customer wants to pick up? Susan Albright makes a brave attempt to organize all the Christmas goodies during the maddest rush season of the whole year.

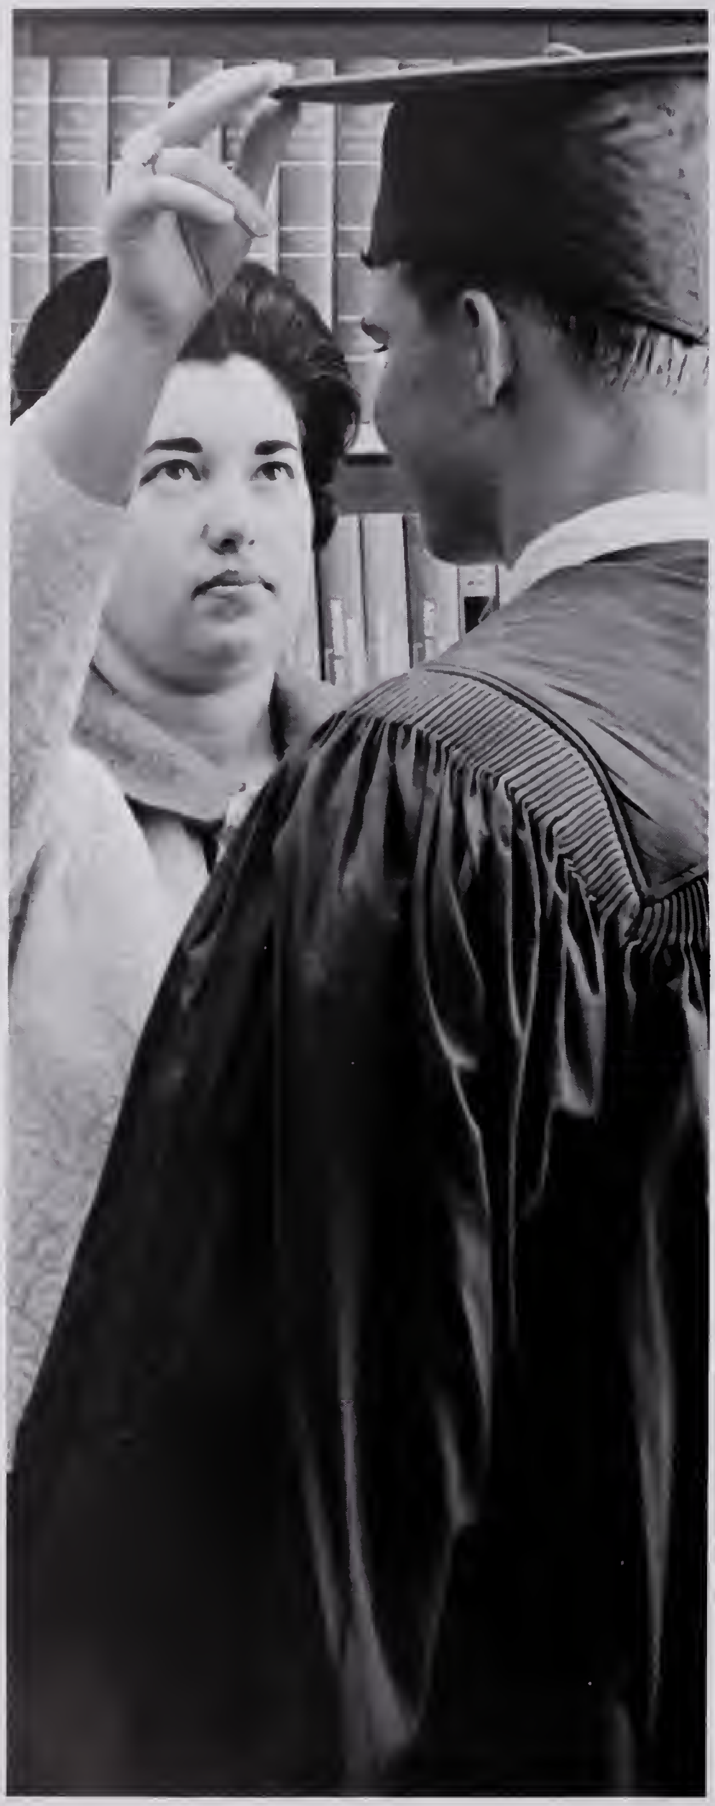
Spring Unfolds New Outlets for Student Life . . . 1968

Z-O-O-M! Spring has sprung on GWites. Infectious cases of spring fever are being reported and teachers wonder why students sit in class and day dream. Would you believe . . .

A glimpse around campus reveals students soaking in a few more moments of sunshine and then madly rushing to class just before the tardy bell rings.

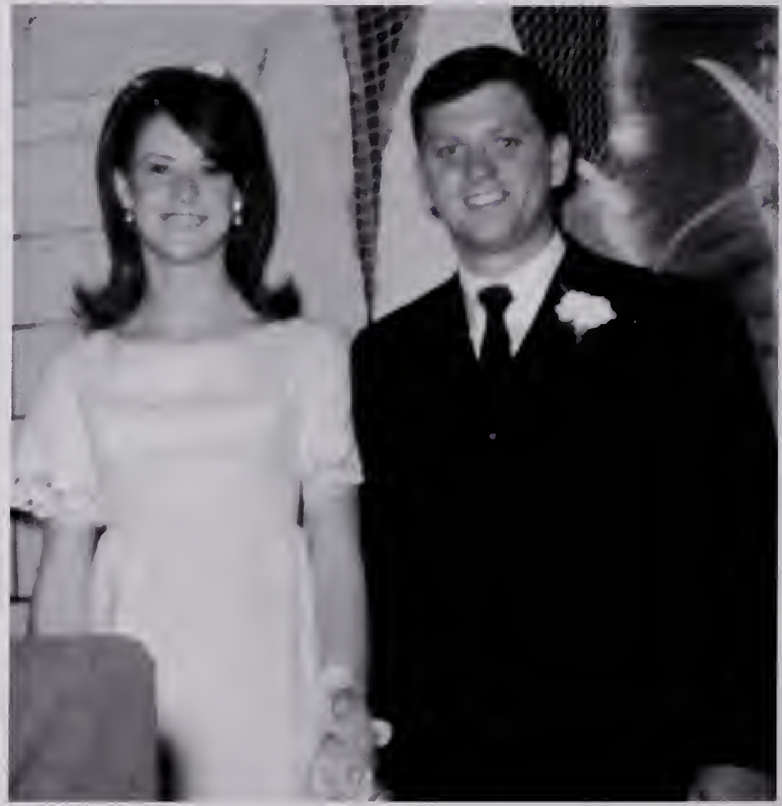
The old saying, "April showers bring May flowers", rings true. Spring is a rebirth, students anticipate new activities — graduation, class day, the spring play, Junior-Senior Banquet, competition in all extra-curricular activities, and last — but not least — The Prom!

Zip, zeal, zest — these terms apply to students now. Everyone "comes alive", looking forward to a summer vacation and — of course! — June ninth. Awakening from their "winter sleep," students blossom out with a new energy — formula, six letters S-P-R-I-N-G.



IT'S THAT WONDERFUL moment, the dream comes true, a senior goes to be fitted for his cap and gown! Miss Betty Lou Giles, chief senior sponsor, helps Billy Joyce find the right size so he can join the Big Parade!

BEAT NORFOLK



SENIOR PROM MEANS many things to many people. Suson Gibbs and Donny Sounders are stylishly and formally clad, ready to greet old and new friends. There'll be great music, good food and fun, fun, fun, fun, fun!

SPRING! THE EVER-PRESENT CLOCK TICKS ENDLESSLY ON, THE LONE LOUNGER LANGUISHES.

JUST AS SPRING '67 brought with it the CAVALIER Hunter Publishing Company's technical consultant, Mr. J. B. Edwards, Spring '68 found a return engagement of this layout expert on the calendar. Editors Carolyn Hudgins (left), Linda Brooks and Marie Freeze rejoice that this time there is no deadline!

AND THEN THERE are always things like term papers and exams in the spring semester. Vickie Walker joins the ranks of those who use the library study periods for cramming in last-minute bits of extra information.

RIVERS

Imagining . . . inspiring . . . initiating in endless creativity! The droplets, the inlets, the engulfing issues . . . all make for a river symbolic of power . . . of achievement. Though the GW student body reflects varied interests, backgrounds and outlooks on life, each individual is needed as a vital force to intensify and activate the ever-moving flow of school happenings. Youth, showing itself in constructive omnipresence! Eagerness, depicted by students at the inquisitive freshman level! And note the happy foolheartiness of sophomores, jaunty confidence of juniors, stately senior solemnity.

Always students on the go . . . running from class to class . . . catching up with friends in the hall . . . GW doors open wide . . . the challenge . . . students receive their first glimpse into exams . . . independence . . . opportunities . . . a new and exciting way of life. As the doors close, students take a last look at their advancement and . . . as worldly beings . . . contemplate the future for what it holds.

Freshmen "Wisdom" Meets Test as SCAT, STEP Reach Student Body

True . . . to be young has its advantages, its disadvantages. This year's influx of youngsters brought with it those who found it completely overwhelming! Fortunately, there was some degree of empathy exhibited as some (fortunately!) upperclassmen elected the roles of helpers rather than "tormenters".

After the newness (with its sometimes accompanying loneliness) wore off, most of the frosh settled into a routine of classes and homework, homework and classes. Although the group as a whole had little opportunity to make a noticeable contribution in activities, each freshman seemed unusually anxious to be a really important cog in the GW picture. School spirit was excellent in the frosh lives, and interest in the athletic competition, in particular, was of real benefit to the Alma Mater.

Freshmen — as they live and learn — recall experiences of pleasure, of inconvenience, of challenge . . . at times maybe of embarrassment. Memories are made of this . . . pulleys in Q.P.S. science class . . . SCAT and STEP in late August . . . while seniors are still swimming, sunning, and sleeping late . . . Miss Hair for Algebra . . . candy at the book store . . . "drill sergeants" in Phys Ed . . . overwhelming crowds in the hall . . . detention hall on Wednesday . . . groovy-looking senior boys whom the dreamy-eyed frosh really dig . . . tryouts for freshman cheerleading . . . fire drill during the ever-lengthening 6th period . . . Goodyear blimp over GW . . . world series in history class . . . crowbar for opening locker when the combination eludes.

Class of '70 Continues to Develop

Proving that some stalwart souls do survive the frosh year, the brand-new Sophomores became more involved in the life of their school and of their community. During the year, these students made their mark in clubs and as Sophomore Waiters and Waitresses.

Along the sports line, the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders succeeded in arousing the support of all in most of the at-home events. The individual class teams performed well in the respective sports competing in intramurals.

Awaiting recognition as upperclassmen, the Sophs can recall their "moments" . . . having no late August tests . . . watching the new and confused Freshmen . . . looking down on the younger youngsters . . . having little towels in gym . . . making J.V. Cheerleaders and Majorettes . . . playing in Varsity Band . . . spilling chocolate milk (on purpose?) . . . falling down the stairs . . . walking confidently down Central with heads up . . . defining long words in Biology . . . losing the Shrine Game . . . being in Mr. Snyder's homeroom . . . singing "Happy Birthday" in A-wing . . . cracking jokes in some classes . . . getting twenty-eight chairs around one small table . . . losing an English teacher to matrimony . . . being Sophomore Waiters and Waitresses . . . participating more effectively in more clubs.

WAITING FOR HER RIDE HOME, PATSY JOURNIGAN BEGINS THE TEDIOUS JOB OF DOING HOMEWORK.

Junior

Maturing Juniors Plunge into Third Year with New Responsibilities

Is it true that GW has an Elysian field? Ask any Latin student and this probing question may be answered. Maybe GW doesn't have the original Latin field of eternal happiness, but it certainly has one for budding Juniors.

Being wet behind the ears, these "new" Juniors proudly took the role of P.C.'s (privileged classmen). As they wandered through the paradise of Juniorhood, these P.C.'s accomplished much during a year replete with "firsts." Many participated in varsity sports and cheerleading, while others contributed their talents to the student publications as primers.

The long-awaited year finally became a reality and supplied many rewards as well as responsibilities. One received the call to support the SCA as an officer, while many others selflessly contributed their varied services to the school and to the community.

While waiting for the final promotion of their high school career, these P.C.'s of GW's Elysian field will recall . . . tests during late August . . . United States history on TV . . . college boards and achievements in May . . . student teachers in various classes . . . NMSQT for measuring scholarship and achievement . . . Newport News bus trip during football season . . . assemblies with Juniors and Seniors, only . . . catastrophies in chemistry . . . third year Latin with Cicero . . . college conferences during class . . . Junior Marshals for Class Day and graduation . . . tapping of twenty into National Honor Society . . . chance to enjoy Junior-Senior Prom and banquet . . . no break during exhausting PSAT.

Juniors Undergo Metamorphosis, Become Poised Seniors During Summer

"You want a nice comment or a cynical crack?" That would be the first reaction of many "superior" seniors in reminiscing about the hard times and the good times of The Senior Year!

The "elder" members of the GW Class of '68 savored the long-desired prestige and much sought-after privilege of being the upper-most upperclassmen. In roles of serving their school and community more effectively, these "superiors" made their marks in both academic and extra-curricular fields.

As the year progressed, the '68 Seniors capably faced up to the traditional requirements of all who pass this well-known way. They participated in athletics, supported many clubs, presented the Senior play and nurtured the "almighty senior" complex.

When the dignified oldsters go out into the world, they can always look back on the '67-'68 year and remember . . . watching T.V. in Senior Lounge . . . standing in small groups in front of the library . . . smelling the city sewage plant . . . talking like Donald Duck . . . receiving "Hello" from Cartoon Theater . . . selecting Senior CAVALIER pictures . . . successfully working Trig problems . . . writing short stories . . . getting out of class early . . . going on band trips . . . preparing sociology papers . . . rehearsing for Senior Play . . . being tapped into Honor Society . . . enjoying (????) freshmen lunch on dreadful but infrequent occasions . . . kicking broken machines in lounge in an effort to retrieve a lost dime . . . giving underclassmen a hard time . . . receiving caps and gowns . . . being honored at Awards Assembly . . . carrying red roses in Prom Figure . . . making Honor Roll for the first time . . . living the life of a king . . . ending the year with sheepskin diplomas.

Progress

RIVERS

Vacillating . . . venturing . . . veering. but ever growing, the imposing image of a Dan River Mills unit casts its shadow over and is reflected upon a rippling river. The faculty and administration teach, influence and advise GW-ites. Water images continue to remain apparent . . . yet the entity changes as the stream progresses onward, developing momentum and import in the flux.

To quench the thirst of the terrain, rivers afford relief when rain has been sparse. To feed the hunger of the mind, teachers supplement daily and untiringly inspire. With books, blackboards and chalk, teachers broaden the scope of learning, of reasoning, of grasping fundamentals.

Rivers are regulated by powerful dams; GW students receive the benefit of experienced minds to guide and steer their paths toward responsibilities of maturity. What turbulent situations the faculty and administration of George Washington must overcome in guiding and controlling the ceaseless flow of GW-ites! Always the reward equals the effort . . . sometimes surprises, surpasses.

Administration Exemplifys Sincere Enthusiasm for Inquisitive Learning

Danville's industrial scene is on the march. GW is ever widening the scope of related curricular. Demands for college entrance by more and more students has led GW toward an even stronger emphasis on guidance activities. It has served as a bolster to GW's philosophy that scholastic achievement must be high.

Along with this emphasis has been a concerted effort toward meeting the needs of the exceptional student in special education classes at the high school level. The exceptional student is interpreted as being one with lesser or with greater scholastic ability. The latter group saw several new curriculum opportunities in science, math and English. Administrative policies have been geared this year, toward freeing the teacher from routine record work.

Alert to the realization that George Washington High School has a many-sided obligation, the administration keeps an eye toward curriculum trends, student reactions as well as needs, and effectiveness of teaching and teachers.

HOLDING AN ADMINISTRATIVE caucus, Superintendent of Schools O. T. Bonner explains school advancements to Administrative Assistant Ernest Baxa, General Supervisor W. C. Overton.

Numerous Courses in Math Offer Challenges to College-Bound Student

Letters of satisfaction (not of homesickness) came into the school this year, as college freshmen reported their excellent progress in math. GW's Math 9, a college level course, was paying dividends!

Students continued to be amazed with the varied fields in which math plays an important role. Teachers emphasized the abstract concepts of this "queen of sciences." Gearing their courses of study to parallel today's rapidly moving world, students were led to realize the reflections of math in modern science.

Congruent triangles, hyperbolas, sine and cosine . . . smatterings of element's combined to form a universal "language" with Miss Evelyn Hair, as head of a thirteen-teacher department. Modern methods brought results.

MATHEMATICS, STUDY OF NUMBERS! They have an unusual significance for Pat Newman, Eddy Turner, Jean Anne Scott, and Barbara Hyde. Leaving math class temporarily, they view the important combination of 1-9-5-5.

Miss Elsie Adkins . . . hobbies are sewing, art, and tennis . . . born in front of fire station . . . attended Radford College.

Mr. Richard Bliss . . . favorite hobby painting . . . plays golf for recreation . . . appreciates people who accept themselves for what they are.

Mrs. Anne Caraway . . . favorite hobbies are reading, gardening . . . enjoys most sports . . . was on Dean's List at Appalachian University.

DURING SCIENCE 9 session, Bonnie Kushner, Betsy Craig, Bill Moore, Albert Payne, and Ida Hall wait as Richard Greene adds the ingredient. These inquisitive students take daily, independent adventures in the realms of science directed by Mr. Pergerson.

Individual Research, Studies Bring Knowledge of Amoebas, Oxidation

Test tubes, microscopes and sliderules were only a few of the physical components which made GW's science department interesting and challenging. The broad curriculum is continually expanding to keep abreast of new high school science frontiers.

Ten freshmen classes took Quantitative Physical Science, which stressed laboratory work in the fundamentals of physics and chemistry. A success last year, it is now in its second year.

Re-instituted this year for juniors, Chem Study—a comprehensive study of chemistry—encouraged student research. It gave intensive training in lab work.

Completely new to the science department and in its experimental stage is Science 9, otherwise known as Research Lab. Participating in this select course of study were six seniors, analyzing in chemistry, experimenting in physics and working in biology. Under the supervision of Mr. William Pergerson, each student worked at his own rate with his project. These projects ranged from gas chromotography to . .

QUALITATIVE PHYSICAL SCIENCE calls for the use of more and varied equipment. Mr. Marshall Pender, teacher, keeps tab on the condition and quality of the available equipment.

Miss Josephine Estes . . . enjoys the beach, seafood and sun-bathing . . . main ambition is to retire, read and journey to Tasmania.

Concern Among Teacher, Students

Bolstered by the addition of five new teachers, the English department began a rigorous, augmented schedule of parallel reading, inductive teaching and linguistics. English classes are experiencing a new variety of changes this year, with the introduction of the linguistic approach.

By starting with advanced senior English classes, the department hopes to orientate a linguistics program into all English classes working down through the freshman level. Teachers also are working toward improved methods geared for this new approach. Special teacher training during the summer was available.

The second major change came in a new approach of teaching literature. The underlying philosophy is that through inductive reasoning, students learn by seeing and studying material rather than by memorizing it.

Regular English classes are supplemented by work courses in drama, speech and novel. Creative writing, an alternate senior English class for college bound pupils, stresses literature and expository writing of essays and short stories.

Miss Betty Giles . . . talented in dramatics . . . dean's list student . . . sponsors J.V. cheerleaders and senior class . . . plays bridge for hobby.

Miss Shirley Gunn . . . spends summers working with underprivileged children . . . fills spare time with knitting . . has developed talent in music.

Miss Joanna Headstream . . . loves to wash dishes, sweep, grade papers and eat egg whites . . . active in Little Theatre.

Language, Key to Communication, Initiates Adventures into Culture

Vale, Buenos Dias, Bonjour, Guten Tag . . . Thanks to four years each of Latin, Spanish and French, to three years of German, students participating in foreign language curriculum had a wide scope of opportunity. The "language barrier impediment" got the four-gun treatment!

Keeping in close touch with the modern year-by-year improvements, books and more books were added to the Spanish, French and German libraries. All pupils studied from never-before-used editions or revised ones.

Changes made in the department this year included the formation of a fourth-year Spanish class. There was a combination of regular fourth year French with Audio-Lingual-Materials.

Instead of beginning the language by a concentration on grammar, the modern language teachers emphasized speech and the association of words with pictures. Third-year classes stressed grammar and the "Why" of speech.

Caesar, Cicero, Ovid, Sallust, Pliny, and Vergil were the main authors in second, third, and fourth years of Latin. The first year was dedicated to basic fundamentals of grammar. Not only did third-year students have new books but first and second-year groups used revised editions.

Complementing all of the languages were corresponding clubs, which pursued supplementary interests taken up only briefly in the classroom.

TWO FOREIGN EXCHANGE students in one year? Beret-clad Albert Payne and Brenda Parrish, attired in the native dress of sombrero and poncho, are caught gayly strolling down the hall.

LATIN STUDENTS OF Miss Ann Andrews, David Price, Mike Weadon, Lindy Koplen, Bill Moore and Brenda Lewis feverishly take notes and try to understand the complexities of the Roman way of life.

HAVING DONNED THE garbs of "Friends, Romans and countrymen," Mike Weadon finds that fourth year Latin is a bit easier to translate when in the mood.

Vocational Students Discover Technical Skills for Business Careers

DE not only permits students to gain this valuable work experience while remaining in school, but also prepares them through specialized courses for full-time employment after graduation.

Supporting the academic environment, the Department of Business Education provided the college-bound student with challenging and profitable courses in business skills. The non-academic pupil had an opportunity to develop talents useful in the business world.

Business math, general business and bookkeeping were the usual courses designed to keep the high school student on his toes in pursuing a career.

Complementing the Business Program is Distributive Education, which includes vocational learning to those preparing for or now taking part in distributing goods and services to the public. All retail, wholesale and service occupations are taken up in this course. It also serves as a background for those who plan to continue advanced training on the college level in business administration, marketing, advertising and similar fields.

Miss Patsy Baker . . . likes seafood, to attend horse races . . . ambition is to get the most out of life.

Mr. O. C. Britton . . . rates pizza, roast beef . . . wishes to make DE program best in state . . . helps adults continue education.

Mr. John Spangler . . . favorite spirt is tennis . . . sponsors Senior Class and D.E. Club . . . active in Little Theatre.

TESTING THE SPORTS equipment he daily hawks, Ernie Warren proves that work can be fun. Since he participates in the DE program, he is able to maintain a job and go to classes.

QUITE DIFFERENT FROM his usual classroom situation! David Newman is surrounded by technical equipment rather than books for his evening disjockey job at WDVA.

STUDENT-TEACHER DAY? Possibly. Mrs. Ruth Blankenship, business education teacher, sits back and enjoys her class progress.

Mr. Alger Pugh . . . "all southern conference" football . . . coaches football and track . . . rates strawberry pie as favorite dish.

Mr. Robert Willoughby . . . likes tennis, hunting, fishing, steak . . . ambition is to be an Industrial Art teacher in Jr. College.

Classroom Activity, Constructive Projects Further Manual Skills

From the simple structure of a wooden block to the complicated framework of a house, future draftsmen in E118 received instruction in the fundamentals of mechanical drawing. The scent of freshly cut pine and recently varnished wood dominated E125, as students labored on their projects. These ranged from bookcases to crossbows.

Instructed on the function, management and safety of the equipment, metal students skillfully created. They were also given opportunity to display their achievements.

Ohms, transistors and short circuits took on special meaning as Electronics' students delved into the theory and the practical application of electricity. Offering only two years of electronics to a limited number of students, the department anticipates expanding soon to three years. This will result in the purchasing of more advanced equipment.

Offering the same broad curriculum as last year, the Industrial Arts department continued to equip students with the necessary skills for competition in an industrialized nation. Special emphasis was given to those skills particularly pertinent to the Danville area.

BOLTS AND NUTS, hammers and drills . . . Encompassed in a world of tools, Barry Durham learns the correct way of using an electric saw from Mr. Robert Willoughby.

DOING A JOB well (note the expression on Industrial Arts teacher Mr. Hunt's face) Alan Gourley painstakingly finishes his draft.

Good Citizenship, Individual Creativity Accentuate Home Ec Ideals

Students who participated in the Home Economic program of GW emerged from the attractive and splendidly equipped E wing quarters as more confident and trustworthy human beings. A knowledge of practical skills, which included far more than just sewing and cooking, resulted from the many-sided emphases. Home Management was presented as a detailed process, requiring skill, interest and know-how.

Planning, preparing and serving meals as well as selection, construction, care and repair of clothing were only a few of the objectives set in Home Ec. I. Second year Home Ec. dealt with the study of fabrics and fibers, techniques of tailoring, family nursing and child care. Reserved for Home Ec. 5 and 6 was the descriptive course of home decorating, buying for the home, dating, courtship and marriage.

Supplementing the special education taught was a presentation of personal studies. This included insight into manners, grooming and individual behavior. A fourth year survey course was offered.

WILL IT BE edible? Culinary achievements of Marcia Lemly, Faye Lawson and Sue Glidewell fill the Home Ec. kitchen with mouth-watering (?), enticing odors.

SETTING UP A cheery mood, Cynthia Calvert decoratively arranges the grapes for a social hour in Home Economics.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moseley . . . enjoys playing bridge . . . is entertained by music and plays . . . likes eating shrimp and French cooking.

Mrs. Annie Laura Sayers . . . possesses talent in hat designing . . . finds enjoyment in reading "McCall's" and "Glamour" magazines.

NEVER A LEISURE moment (below) for upcoming homemakers! Ann Lewis, Rita Buck, Marcia Lemly, Susan Foster, Martha Patterson, Sue McGhee, Pam Sater, Kathy Holder and Regina Lavinder occupy themselves with checking recipes and methods.

Miss Jean Still . . . sewing favorite hobby . . . likes the beach . . . watches "Mike Douglas Show" . . . chairman of City's Home Ec. teachers.

Physical Education Courses Feature Variety, Developments

Miss Mattie Beale . . . craves chicken and dumplins . . . favorite recreation, basketball . . . a main ambition, to enjoy work, life, and friends.

Mrs. Clara Lee Ripley . . . received "White Blazer Award" at Longwood College . . . played trombone in GW band . . . enjoys tennis.

Miss Carrie Wilson . . . reading, chess, writing occupy spare time . . . hopes to obtain Master degree . . . rates spaghetti and steak.

Mrs. Martha Woods . . . ranked nationally in swimming for 3 years . . . meat, potatoes, rich desserts constitute diet . . . plays bridge.

SOMEBODY IS LATE for class and it seems to be Margaret Carpenter, clutching third base! Lee Currier is holding the softball and Joan Harold leads the way.

While the physical education classes for girls were learning steps of folk and square dances, boys brushed up on basketball skills. The department is unique in that students are encouraged to improve themselves mentally as well as physically.

At the tenth grade level, a course in driver-training, which includes traffic rules and regulations and defensive driving, was taught with lectures, workbooks and films. In addition to this, behind-the-wheel training was offered to those who met the age requirement.

Sophomores were given a First Aid course in which fundamentals were demonstrated. The use of good techniques in daily home accidents was emphasized. In addition to health studies in the prescribed two-year course, gym sports, field sports and tennis were played by both boys and girls.

Essential in measuring the improvement of each individual in his soundness in body, physical fitness tests were given to all students at the beginning and end of the year. Physical education classes afforded the students means for exercise, training in sports, a study of health, and the thrill of participation in group activities.

Mrs. Fonda Boatwright . . . has visited forty-one states . . . member of Foreign Exchange Student Committee . . . enjoys dramatics, fine arts.

Mr. John Bumgardner . . . has been mistaken for student . . . likes to skin dive, drive race cars . . . has brown belt in Ju-Jitsu, his hobby.

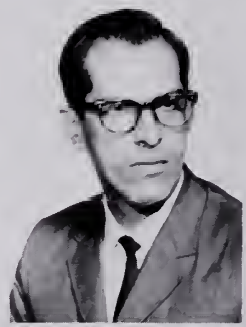
Mr. Herald Flynn . . . favorite sport is tennis . . . special food: Boston cream pie . . . ambition: masters degree in drama; Concord graduate.

Mrs. Polly Flynn . . . tennis favorite recreation . . . musical shows favorite entertainfent . . . pet peeve students who smile for no reason.

Mr. Harris Gooch . . . enjoys bowling and fishing . . . graduate of University of North Carolina . . . M.A.T. degree . . . enjoys TV.

A HANDSOMELY DECKED globe is just one of the many reference materials Mr. Tom Houser makes use of in his senior Government classes.

Mr. Jesse Gusler . . . earned "Mr. Ferrum" while attending Ferrum Jr. College . . . has set goal to obtain his Ph.D. . . . plays guitar.



WHILE THE CORRECT answers are being carefully explained by Mr. William H. Gooch, instructor, Margaret Collin's cool aloofness is evident. Her expression suggests the thought that certainly she of all people doesn't need the answers!

Anticipation of Future Problems, Needs

Strange sounds filter through the A-wing each morning, just before government classes begin. Porky Pig and Casper, "the friendly ghost," come in, but don't take a seat! Giggles are heard from passers-by. Would you believe . . . television?

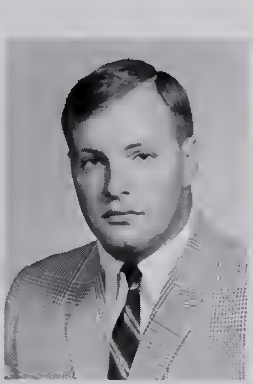
Sociology, an increasingly popular course, included the study of the individual, family, community, nation and problems of each. Supplementing this one-semester course, economics examined the production, distribution and consumption of everyday products.

As in previous years, all government classes toured vital city installations. Students gleaned first-hand knowledge of the structure and significance of each.

Aided by the use of films, demonstrations and field trips, the department endeavored to help students adjust to modern society by helping them understand the problems of modern and ancient history.

UMPH! THOSE BARS are strong! Marion Setliff (center) and Jim Zahrn (front) agree, as Edgar Adams (rear) dares them to break into the cell. Scene is not the GW campus but the City Jail, toured annually by Senior Government classes!

Mr. Thomos P. Houser . . . sports provide enjoyment . . . announces football games for WBTM . . . hates cafeteria duty . . . relishes shrimp, steak, sports.



Mr. Robert Mogill . . . likes sports in general and particular interests in hunting . . . ambitions: coach and teach on college level.

Mr. Robert Mitchell . . . enjoys a drive through the country . . . lettered in tennis at East Tennessee State University.

"THIS MAY BE the biggest blunder of my life" says Steve Wilson as he swings his paper in relief that the test is over.

Mr. Vincent Oglesby . . . enjoys reading, gardening . . . craves lemon pie, medium rare steaks . . . likes to ride bicycle . . . attended East Carolina University.

Mr. William Olson . . . enjoys wrecking cars, creative writing, and traveling . . . was manager of college newspaper . . . hopes to get Ph.D.

Mr. Richard Pruitt . . . loves steaks, lasagna . . . basketball favorite sport . . . "partying" favorite entertainment . . . voted "most intellectual in high school."

Mr. Ralph Wall . . . B.A. degree from Emory and Henry . . . "Snuffy Smith" favorite cartoon . . . enjoys "Sports Illustrated" . . . guard on Va. Small College team.

Mr. Marion Word . . . enjoys making out tricky true-false questions . . . rates lobsters tails, chop suey . . . entertained by plays.

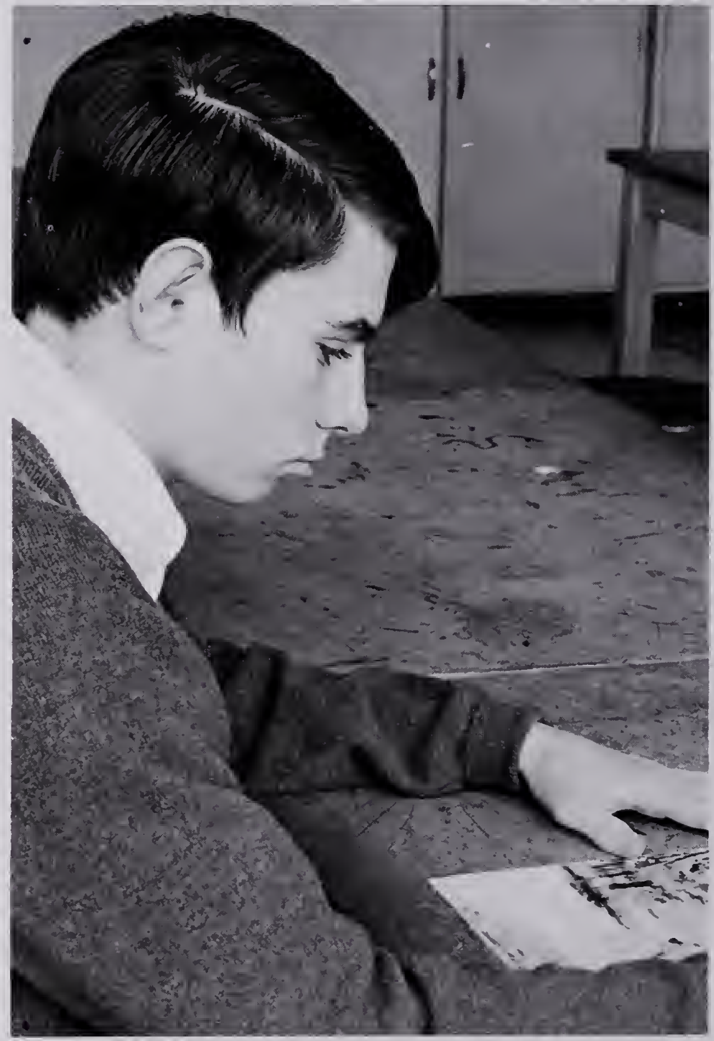
TRYING TO BLOW his horn at half-time, Rod Coleman says, "Come on, now stop trying to make me laugh."

GOOD WORKS OF art are born with great concentration. Dale Moore exemplifies this truism as he paints, paints, paints.



Mr. Merideth Jeffress . . . sculpturing is hobby and profession . . . likes barbecued spare ribs, baseball . . . wants to be rich, famous.

Mr. Harry Mamlin . . . hobbies include job, reading . . . likes liver and cheese cake . . . recreation is playing with four children . . . works with choirs and bands.

Fine Arts Encourage Student Body toward Class, Cultural Contributions

Sounds from the E-wing filtered throughout the school as the Chorus members and band participants practiced . . . practiced . . . practiced their daily routines. Performance of the finest calibre in choral literature made Concert Choir a highly selective group, calling for an audition from its male and female vocalists.

Functioning as a marching band in various parades, the Symphonic Band raised the spirit and enthusiasm of spectators during football games. In the Stage Band, students seriously pursued jazz through performances at assemblies, musicals and other related activities.

Sculpture, ceramics, drawing and painting were just a few of the avenues of activity of the art program. Art history and appreciation, color theories and techniques and the study of various schools of art—such as expressionistic and cubist—added variety and interest. Full consideration was given to the knowledge that art is not only the possible basis for a career, but also something to be enjoyed in leisure time.

Mr. William Snyder . . . enjoys music, singing and directing . . . participates in Community Chorus, G.W. musicals . . . stays busy continually, happily.

Miss Lucile Walton . . . interested in biological research which fills her summer vacations . . . has been at G.W. for 42 years.

Mrs. Judy Yeaman . . . enjoys playing baseball and basketball . . . likes steaks and pizza . . . ambition: have a big family someday.

"Efficiency, Patience, Endurance, Quality" Motto of GW Office Staff

"WHAT DO YOU mean you thought he was at school?" asks Mrs. Virginia Fentriss of a confused mother! Mrs. Judy Yeaman, Mrs. Inez Anderson, and Mrs. Celia Dishman with Mrs. Fentriss, comprise the efficient office staff directed by Miss Elizabeth Copeland.

Amidst an array of typewriters, telephones, adding and duplicating machines, GW's secretaries never have a moment without a demand for their skill and know-how.

One of the most beneficial duties of the office staff, is the sending of high school records, transcripts and letters of recommendation to various colleges. Semester and yearly grades are carefully averaged to show each student's class rank.

As helpers for the administration, the secretaries help schedule classes. Additional duties include checking absentee lists, writing excuses, reporting on attendances and dealing with drop-outs.

VARIED INTERESTS OF seniors Linda Pruett, Edward Ross and Sue Glidwell lead them to the well-stocked guidance department library and the ever-ready assistance of Mrs. Mabel Davis.

"FROM THE HALLS of Montezuema to the shores of Tripoli . . ." Recruiting marine officer (Staff Sergeant, Dan Price) tells Miss Elizabeth Copeland, office manager of some of the requirements for students venturing into that branch of service. One of Miss Copeland's many responsibilities is to fill out all-important forms for college bound students and service bound boys.

Guidance Counselors Advise, Answer Questions with Understanding

PITTER . . . PATTER . . . a soft spring rain (above) sprinkles gently, as Mrs. Ethel Barker ascends the steps beaming . . . rain or shine. Like the postman, the guidance counselor is not deterred by sleet, snow or . . . . . . rain!

Senior statistics, college conferences and schedules kept the guidance department faculty alert and on their toes throughout the year. Striving to serve the entire student body with helpful advice on choice of classes, colleges and professions, the guidance personnel methodically arranged for the offices to be available by appointment for the entire student body at least twice a year. There were five teachers, two new to GW this year.

Complete follow-ups were made on all graduates. These were tabulated for statistical points concerning employment. The percentage of students who have gone to college and attained degrees was calculated, results affording bases for evaluation.

ON CAMPUS TO CONDUCT a college conference, Mr. J. Foster Owen from Catawba College is greeted by his host, Mr. Ivey Rogers.

Mrs. Ethel Barker . . . southern fried chicken, ice cream favorites . . . clubs occupy free time . . . ambition: work on graduate degree.

Mrs. Mabel Davis . . . enjoys writing letters to international teachers . . . if rolling in money, would like to build a pool for Danville.

Mrs. Betty Falk . . . enjoys golf and swimming . . . loves steak and salads . . . desires to lead a useful life.

Mr. Ivey Rogers . . . hunts, fishes and snow skis for diversion . . . irritated by lack of promptness . . . choice of vacation is Germany.

Mrs. Jacqueline White . . . hobbies are reading and playing piano . . . favorite foods are seafood and steak . . . enjoys bowling and tennis.

Library Offers GW-ites Quiet Place for Study, Research, Inspiration

Where would you find 14,000 books? Not only does the library at GW house this enormous number of books and magazines, but also it serves as a haven for enrichment and reading. Daily newspapers are received covering news in surrounding areas.

Peaceful atmosphere, found only in the library, stimulates the mind to a greater desire for doing homework, research and study in general. Staffed with two librarians and one secretary, the library staff has taken on the help of five students. These students gave up their free periods to be of special use to the librarians, by running errands, checking out books and stacking them up after use.

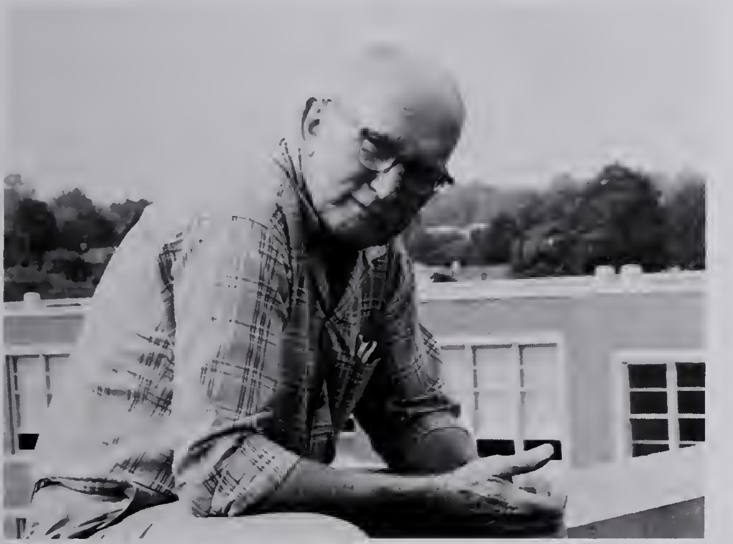
Ingenuity, Conscientiousness, Cooperation Keep Wheels Rolling at GW



CONTENTED WITH A job well done, Mr. Joe Ferrell sits "on top of the world" as he relaxes for a brief rest.

Supplying 2300 students with lunch is not an easy job! Nor is cleaning up after 2300 students.

Yet, with twenty cafeteria employees, headed by Mrs. Sara Pearson, a variety of edibles daily highlights the serving shelf. The junk line offers a variety of tasties. The hot lunch includes numerous nutritious dishes.

Five custodians work from the early hours of the morning to the late hours of the afternoon to make GW a clean building, suitable for the learning experience. Heating and ventilating pose problems, as does care of the spacious campus. Mr. Joe Ferrell directs the staff.

Service, dependability, skill and mathematical accuracy, are exemplified by the continuous efforts of the cafeteria and custodial staff.

WHILE STOPPING FOR a rest, Mr. Michael Callahan, member of the maintenance staff, exclaims, "Every litter bit hurts!"

THE SMILING FACES of Mrs. Sarah Pearson and Mrs. Jessie Rice, cafeteria personnel, stand ready and waiting for the hungry mob. Life-savers anyone?

RIVERS

Expanding . . . entwining . . . egressing, yet nary a drop is wasted as water, water, water ceaselessly thunders and cascades over the dam. How close the resemblance to the pep, energy and school spirit which emanates from GW-ites, as they encounter learning situations.

Lives and hopes of spirited students continually ebb into a spontaneous cycle of activities. Varieties of clubs, offering membership and beckoning participants flood the students at GW with opportunities for enrichment. Trying periods of study, concentration and testing find a welcomed change of pace with clubs and their refreshing entertainment, affording relief to "the weary".

School support "comes alive" through extra curricular activities and group cooperation. The personalities of students strengthen and develop in surprising ways. Each individual combines talent, time and industry in reflecting and refurbishing the outstanding reputation of George Washington.

Students Govern Through Active, Diligent, All-Inclusive Student Council

Keying their objectives to supplementary aid for charitable organizations as well as for their own treasury, the SCA sponsors fund raising projects from fall to spring. Greater participation in state and district SCA conventions has been achieved.

Student directories are compiled and offered for sale in the fall and GW pennants and decals are available throughout the football season. Open house provides entertainment for the student body after home games.

During Christmas, contributions consisting of money, food and other goods are taken up in the homeroom and transfered to the Faith Home. Collections are made in the spring to furnish subsidy for our traveling GW-ite, the AFS student.

Thespians Advance GW's Dramatic Arts With Enriching Experiences

GW'S WELL-EQUIPPED and attractive auditorium affords the setting for Thespian activities. On numerous occasions the seats are filled to capacity by students who view with enthusiasm the dramatic talent exhibited through the Thespians' programs, sponsored by Miss Mary Ann Ratcliffe.

Gaily costumed actors and actresses (GW's that is!) captivate the audience with each of their breathtaking performances. To these obviously talented individuals, membership in the Thespians, an honorary dramatist association, is a much hoped for achievement.

Membership is open to students who have revealed their performing ability by being in plays, to students who have taken drama courses and want to be a member in order to pursue their interests, or to those who have excelled in production techniques.

Members are given opportunities during the year to attend professional performances for pleasure.

Debaters, Campus Lifers Argue Propositions Pertinent to Today's World

Intelligent argumentation, quick thinking, the art of persuasion and getting the point across—these attributes and talents shine brilliantly whenever GW's Debaters meet to debate among themselves, with nearby schools, or in district competition (where it counts!). Sponsored by Mr. T. P. Houser, social studies department head, the team consists of two negative and two affirmative speakers.

This year's concern is crime and crime control in the U. S., dealing with uniform laws in regard to owning firearms. Practice is begun in early winter. Intramural competition in February was the basis for selecting the top four debaters. These traveled to the District Forensic Meet in April to vie for a trip to the May State Forensic Meet, hoping for further honors.

Weekly meetings, debates, humorous skits, films and recreational meetings made up the agenda of the Campus Life Club. This group considered problems facing young people in everyday life situations. Completely interdenominational, the organization worked toward opening avenues of spiritual fulfillment for the students.

Highlighting the year was a trip to the National Convention in Miami. Local members were given opportunities to learn about and exchange ideas with other young people from the entire country.

The high goals of the Campus Life Club were geared to lead its members into a deeper Christian faith, to develop Christian character, and to promote Christian fellowship. Practical application was stressed.

Club Sees Wheels of Government Turning, Encourages Political Thinking

Developing in members a sense of responsibility and of the importance of good government, the Civics Club ignited and fostered a spark of loyalty and allegiance to government and community. As future voters in an ever growing and ever moving world, members received insight into the governmental processes involved in daily life. Adventures in the world of crime and underground rackets . . . means undertaken to put over a successful political campaign . . . functions and values of the community college . . . this varied subject matter brought stimulation to the members. There were programs crammed with factual information concerning federal, state and local topics, advantageous in giving the would-be FBI agent, politician, educator or business major a well rounded idea of his occupational tasks.

The agenda was under the supervision of Mr. Marion Ward, government and social studies teacher.

IRC enables high school students to become more internationally minded and aware of events outside their scope of surroundings, with the slant on an informal one as opposed to formal classroom techniques. Under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Miller, meetings are held monthly at the homes of the members, with refreshments! Togas, Stolas, Traditional Roman Wedding Enhance Latin Club Banquet

"Roman games, banquets, drama . . . Come one, come all third and fourth year Latin students to the Latin Club!" Pursuing a study of the immense heritage the Romans left, the Latin Club meets every month with varied emphases.

Films, guest speakers and entertainment by the members themselves make this organization a source of information as well as fun. Christmas caroling in Latin, gag gifts, refreshments, seasonal cheer all make the December meeting a special event. As a final farewell to seniors, a Roman Banquet, consisting of sacrifices or chariot races, a dramatic presentation, the initiation of new officers and merry feasting, are features in the spring.

The Latin Club publishes its own personalized newspaper, "The Nuntius", which is edited by fourth year members but is open to any creative contributions from other Latin pupils. All Latin students subscribe, and copies are shared with prospective Latin students.

IT TAKES A HEAP of planning to keep a club rolling. David Price, president of OVI-CAPITA has a willing helper in Brenda Lewis. Both have been yearly contestants representing GW in the State Latin Tournament, making creditable showings. Brenda achieved distinction in spelling in English (as well as Latin!).

Films, Lectures Supplement Constructive, Entertaining German Programs

A post office at GW? That and more, for, as a fund raising project, the German Club delivers Christmas cards within the school for GWites at the fee of two cents per card. The German Club is under the supervision of Mrs. Margaret Kushner, head of the foreign language department. Programs opened up additional avenues for a study of the language. Members delved into the customs of the fascinating Old World Country of Germany in the monthly meetings. There were informal talks by native Germans, slides or films were shown on special occasions by those who had been to German-speaking nations.

Adding spice to an already absorbing schedule of activities, a banquet in the spring concluded the year.

AMONG HIS MANY talents, Mr. James Shields claims a proficiency and enjoyment in teaching the German language.

PERSUADING CHRIS BRAME to play his German record, Ed Pratt tries to get out of translating. But the teacher came back too soon.

Phrases, Christmas Carols, Chats

Special entertainment and exciting fun made this year's French Club an all time great. The well-planned programs were truly enjoyed by the mass of students who attended. The officers and sponsor, Miss Caryl Hogg, went "way out" to obtain Mr. Roger Harbistreutinger, an exciting, young Swiss gentleman, as speaker for the first meeting. A later meeting featured a group of ALM students who entertained with hilarious skits in French complete with hair-raising commercials. To become more acquainted with the realistic side of France the club invited Peary and Greg Stafford to share with the members the experiences they encountered while living in France last year.

The French Club greeted the holiday season with a Christmas party, which resounded with French carols and even a visit from Santa. As another "first," the club planned to present a fashion show of the latest "Frenchie" flares in design for both boys and girls. The year was capped by the annual French Banquet in the spring.

Spanish Club Places Emphasis on Development of World News in Cuba

"Habla Vd. español?" This familiar question was repeatedly heard as the Spanish Club began its biggest year yet. Members from eight new first year classes were welcomed into the club, anxious for activities to begin which were centered around "Life in Spanish-Speaking Countries."

Club activities got under way with the election and installation of Spanish officers. Mr. Eugene Scott of Alabama showed his slides of Spain and Argentina also.

Dr. Rafael Aquirre, a native Cuban and present Spanish professor at Stratford, was guest speaker at one of the monthly meetings. Dr. Aquirre gave an excellent lecture to the Club on the life and customs in his native country.

In carrying out the central theme for the year, highlights included Mr. Ronald Hutchinson's slides of Spain which he took while vacationing in Spain last summer. Also included was a visit by Carmen Cabario at the Spanish Club's annual Christmas meeting. Miss Cabario told of Christmas in her native country of Peru.

In rounding out the year, a banquet was held with the main courses consisting of, what else, but Spanish foods!!

Tutoring, Christmas Party for Retarded Children Highlight Year for FTA

FTA Girls are constantly sources of joy, of various kinds. Novel smiles of long anticipated delight brighten the faces of the twelve youngsters at the Richard Smith Home for Retarded Children as a dozen gay seniors enter, bedecked with Christmas goodies. One of the most worthwhile features of the Future Teachers of America is their annual trip to this school for a Christmas party.

Career-wise, the FTA aims toward presenting the inside views of teaching to the high school student at GW. Members are made aware of the psychological importance involved in teaching by guest speakers. Of special interest was a candid discussion led by a Danville citizen, Mrs. Warren Fulton. She told of the needs and problems involved in instructing children of kindergarten age.

The projects included a unique system of tutoring. Each member used her special capabilities in tutoring students who had problem spots in various courses. This tutoring took place during study halls. Along with this, the members elected a teacher from the GW faculty as Teacher of the Year. The FTA is sponsored by Miss Joanna Headstream, English teacher.

JUST A FEW minutes before time to go tutor! Taking part in the tutorial program, (left to right) Peggy Sowers, Martha Kossoff and Connie Carter glance through books in hopes that they will be more intelligible on their subject.

Thanksgiving Party, Presents Enliven Faith Home Children's Holidays

Glamour of nursing can wait, but service to mankind begins at the high school. This was proven by members of the Future Nurses of America. Keeping past civic participation in mind, the "girls in blue" promoted worthwhile projects. After taking a special course at the Red Cross center, the girls with sparkling eyes proudly become Blue Stripe aides. Under Red Cross supervision they may work at the Roman Eagle Nursing Home.

Throughout the year the "nurses to be" repeatedly revealed in various projects their love for goodwill which is a vital part of nursing. For Thanksgiving, bags of fruits, nuts and candy, prepared by the girls, delighted children at the Faith Home.

Children, who spent their Christmas holiday in the hospital beamed happily as they received toys from the FNA Santa Claus. "Silent Night" resounded through the hospital as FNA Carollers sang to other patients.

Spring enlightened and excited the girls who toured a college with a medical curriculum and had a chance to explore possible medical careers. Also, they visited the Richard Smith School to hold an Easter Egg Hunt for the children.

Special FNA Day, a Mother-Daughter banquet and a tea completed the varied activities of the club.

FNA OFFICERS Patty Hall, secretary, Gayle Crane, vice-president, Linda Beaver, president, Donna Childress, treasurer.

"I BELIEVE THESE shoes do match," remarks Kathy Young as Ellen Henderson holds up a dress. Looks like the outfit is appealing to other Model-T's: Gail Lawton, Maureen Love, Susan Gibbs, and Barbara Hall.

DILIGENTLY PRACTICING THE art which won her a blue ribbon at the fair, Ann Lewis concentrates on getting the seam straight.

Speaking of boys, mini-skirts, boys, armchair theater, boys, hairstyling, boys? Look to the topics on the agenda of Model T's as their monthly meetings progressed!

A boy-girl panel discussion on topics ranging from dating to school life provided a new scope of interest for the Model T's this year, as boys from the Key Club entered into a frank debate with the girls.

Programs included tips on "college dress", hairstyling and make-up. Also, during the Christmas season the girls were advised on buying the proper gift with regard to price range and appropriateness.

Christmas time brought about the usual goodwill with the girls donating food, clothing and toys for the underprivileged families. The members also participated in the Christmas parade.

FHA'ers, Model T's Participate with Future Aspirations in Mind

Leisure time is constructive time. Putting this proverbial saying into practice, members of the Future Homemakers of America exemplified their '67-'68 special theme, "Citizenship Challenges You," in divers ways.

Beginning early in October, club members took part in the annual fashion show at the Danville Fair. The industrious girls designed, sewed, and got a few pin-pricked fingers. But it was worth it to see the lovely costumes displayed.

In the fall the FHA presented a program on "Citizenship Challenges Youth" to the district federation meeting. GW's FHA was hostess to the annual convention and Mr. Kenneth Miller, associate principal, was named guest speaker.

Yuletide spirit prevailed during Christmas, when the young homemakers gave baskets for food and presents to a needy family. Socializing over goodies, the school faculty sampled their good cooking at a Christmas Tea.

National FHA week blossomed during Spring. Highlights of June were a Mother-Daughter Banquet and the state Future Homemakers of America Convention.

Increases School Spirit of GW-ites

There's the beat of the drum, the blare of the trumpet and the flash of the brass, and here comes that spirit-promoting, red-coated GW band again.

To assure its precision, whether it be during a half-time show, a parade, a special program in the school auditorium or a Homecoming event, the GWHS Marching Band began the year with marching rehearsals before the opening of school.

During the football season the band represented GW at all games. With new and original half-time shows and with fight songs played in the stands, the band entertained spectators and helped boost school spirit.

The majorettes and Kiltie Korps have always given the band the eye appeal for its football shows. The baton and pom-pom pyrotechnics were used especially to augment the band's musical prowess.

Immediately following football season while the band was busily preparing the Christmas Concert, the individual members were intently practicing for the All-District Band auditions.

The festive holiday spirit of GW was magnified with the annual Christmas Band Concert. But the holidays were over too quickly as the band began the long, hard months of preparation for the Spring Festivals.

With the pressures of the Festivals behind them, the band members directed their efforts toward the presentation of several spring concerts and participation in the Fine Arts Festival.

Varied, Efficient Choral Groups Boast Representatives From All-State

Striving to enrich and develop the voices of GW's musically inclined students, Mr. William Snyder teaches and directs three groups of singers. The Mixed Chorus and Girls' Chorus are open to all students who enjoy singing in these forms of vocal ensembles and who wish to improve their already acquired talent of voice. These groups basically serve as a training ground for the accomplished Concert Choir, whose members are a highly select group. Eligible members must have previously participated in one or both of the above groups and must also have successfully performed in competition in a special audition held by Mr. Snyder.

A Christmas Concert enlightened the winter season when the Concert Choir presented a variety of holiday selections to the student body and various Danville civic and cultural clubs.

The All-State Chorus, whose participants are an honored few, and the District 6 Choral Festival also highlighted the choral activities.

Working together and combining abilities, all three groups blossomed sprightly into spring as they featured the Spring Concert with light, and popular music.

A ceremonial necessity, the Concert Choir again pulled through for Baccalaureate activities to present to the graduates the glowing talents that remain behind only to steadily grow.

Cheerleaders Add Sparkle, Pep - Infuse Rallies with School Spirit

Can anybody get up at 8:00 o'clock in the morning and exert both pep and energy at the same time? At G.W. these do — The Varsity Cheerleaders, composed of twelve girls, three boys and one very lively mascot. The squad begins practicing and making posters two weeks before the official fall opening.

Throughout this past year, the G.W. cheerleaders have diligently tried to achieve their highest goal, to arouse and project good school spirit and sportsmanship. They have organized a student cheering section which is a preparatory step to a future pep club.

As in the past years, the cheerleaders sold ribbons before each home game and also held an open house.

Additional activities included the planning for the Homecoming week end, decorating the football field, preparing pep rallies, and sponsoring bus trips for out-of-town football and basketball games.

Room E-102-Scene of Constant Flurry as Annual Staffers Meet Deadlines

"War chant" in E102 (CAVALIER Room!) was not "The British are coming" but rather "Mr. Edwards is coming!" (Serving as the trusty technical consultant from Hunter Publishing Company, Mr. Edwards readily offered his expert assistance to learning amateurs who gratefully accepted his advice.) The loyal cooperation contributed by each staff member in order to "keep up to date" definitely proved to be a necessity and a great asset contributing to the success of this year's yearbook.

Goal of the CAVALIER staff was to compile a book of real meaning for the whole student body and faculty, not just a "memory book" for seniors only. A feeling of accomplishing this goal reigned, as an unprecedented number of students were pictured.

Everyone was on the move . . . never a dull moment . . . as editors, along with senior assistants, faithfully and regularly toiled to create headlines . . . caption pictures . . . write, write, and rewrite copy . . . labor steadily over layouts. Junior assistants, not only pitched in to assist but simultaneously learned and stored in their minds the basic essentials in producing a year book. Typists constantly "clicked away" to produce legible copies of work and to escape the ever-present chant of Mrs. Cheney Lea, CAVALIER editorial advisor, "You're wasting!"

Sharing the praise and the hard work, the business Staff, supervised by Miss Josephine Estes, financed the '68 CAVALIER by selling ads and handling subscriptions. Their biggest project was the distribution and sale of all class pictures. Laboring to the end, they sponsored the plastic yearbook covers in the spring and handled circulation problems.

Even though there seemed endless moments of fatigue and frustration, rewards came in the end — the completed pages, the thrill of layouts that suddenly clicked, the editors happy tears when the last section was turned in on time.

With its usual "First Class" rating, CAVALIER set new highs in journalistic achievement with the '67 book. Both SIPA and CSPA ratings were of the highest order.

Imagination, Journalistic Skill, Talents Produce Prize-Winning Chatterbox

MANAGING EDITORS, Treva Carter, Robert Hayden, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF, Ellis Hodge, EDITORIAL ADVISOR, Miss Eileen Cordle.

Chatterbox staff members produce a top-notch publication under constant pressure. Their work is divided into weeks, according to a pre-arranged schedule.

As each paper comes out, plans for the next issue are in the assignment stage. After many hours of research and snooping in general, copy reaches the hands of editors.

This means endless hours of typing chores, name checking and, sometimes, rewriting. Later in the week, lay-out editors have finished dummying pages. The staff begins counting letters as they write headlines for their stories.

The ensuing week galley proofs come. And so does an epidemic of headaches for editors, who scrupulously search out the errors of copy readers and the printer!

Finally, the Chatterbox comes off the press and arrives in 0-21, where excited reporters quickly thumb through in search of hoped-for by-lines — or just to find out how much of their work wound up on the cutting board to make the news fit. Sixth period arrives, subscribers receive papers.

CTS Exhibits Fine Quality in Literary Work, Gets Excellent Rating Under

AS MR. JAMES Shields uses his dictionary to make last minute corrections on the fall issue of the CTS, he sometimes can be heard mumbling "let's see, that's v-i-t-r-i . . ."

PENCIL IN HAND, Sam Coxe, assistant editor of the CTS, reads a short story with a critical eye.

ARTISTRY AND A creative mind are the ingredients for another of Larry Parker's famous "Ilks". Larry, art editor for the CTS, demonstrates once again that every "Ilk" is worth a thousand words.

Stiff Competition at CSPA, SIPA

Paperbacks have competition at GW as the members of the Cardinal Talent Scout staff once again provided the GW students with an outstanding assortment of short-stories, poems, essays, features, and art-work. Some selected material other than that produced by staff members was considered for publication and used in the two issues of the magazine. Both were enthusiastically received by the student body.

Despite the fact that a few minor diversions were initiated by some of the zanier staff members, the CTS crew turned out worthwhile, readable magazines that achieved high honors at both the CSPA and SIPA conventions. Student comments indicated that the literary off-spring of their contemporaries and associates were definitely appreciated. Work progressed under the supervision of a new advisor, Mr. James T. Shields, Jr.

Combining originality in illustrations and text with attractive lay-out, CTS boasted a practical size. Content ranged from though-provoking seriousness to slap-stick comedy. Top quality!

National Honor Society Recognizes Scholastic Achievement by Students

A solemn march of robed figures onto stage . . . an enlightening message by the President of Averett College . . . tap on the shoulder . . . whispers of congratulations . . . National Honor Society induction ceremony!

Thus all National Honor Society tappings begin. Each assembly brings about the same anticipation, and hope to all juniors and seniors with a average of 91 or above.

Not only is scholastic average a significant criterion for selection, but consideration is given to integrity, leadership ability, and individual pride in attainment. The organization is but one expression of the growing concern for stimulating emphasis in scholarship. Directing the agenda is Miss Lucille Walton.

Affording newspaper reporters, yearbook creators and literary contributors recognition for loyalty and excellence is membership in the Quill and Scroll. The club was designed and originated to supplement the curriculum of journalistic-minded individuals.

Eligibility lies in being recommended by the respective publication sponsor after at least one year of work on the CAVALIER, CTS or Chatterbox. Also, the student must be in the upper third of his class.

An international honor society, the Q.&S. publishes its own magazine. This is sent to the homes of members. Sparkling Q.&S. jewelry highlights the toilette of the members, who wear the badge pridefully.

SPENDING THEIR SPARE time for study, in loyal determination to keep the high ideals of the National Honor Society, are officers: Jim Zahrn, pres.; Mike Fitzpatrick, v. pres.; Lindy Koplen, sec.; and Margaret Berkley, treas.

Students Discover Active Roles in Community Life Through DE Class

DID SOMEONE MAKE a funny? Mr. John Spangler takes a few minutes out from regular class time to contemplate what Ruth Francis has just said.

D. E. DEPARTMENT head, Mr. D. C. Britton, discusses new aspects of teaching service to the public to his helpers, Mr. John Spangler and Miss Patsy Baker.

Efficiency, reliability, an understanding of the complex structure of modern business — these are a few of the numerous skills D.E. students acquire through the Distributive Education program at G.W. Their part-time jobs bring money, understanding, and improved skills. Designed to prepare students for careers in marketing and distribution, G.W.'s D.E. department can boast of one of the largest programs in Virginia. Danville affords broad opportunity for student experience because of its unusually wide industrial field — Dan River, Goodyear, Corning, Diston, to name a few.

Fall rallies, and the district and state leadership conferences dominate autumn activities. Highlighting a year of many successes and a few disappointments, the Employee-Employer banquet enabled students to show their appreciation for the training acquired through their jobs. As in past years, the D.E. department offered a short course of instruction for these students looking for part-time jobs during the Christmas Season. This brought increased "money in the pocket" for many GWites.

Service, Bonfires, Painting Curbs Keep Key, Monogram Clubs Busy

"Projects, projects, projects" could well have been the watchword for the Key Club. Annually, the club gives a $100 scholarship toward some worthy student's education at the Danville branch of VPI.

To raise the money this year, members painted house numbers on curbs. They also sold peanut brittle. Another project of this group was to sell travelog tickets. The purpose of this unusual venture was to raise money for the fund.

Film strip programs about the far corners of the world provided interesting and informative entertainment for ticket holders. Thus, the ticket-selling work indirectly brought enjoyment for the Danville citizen.

Hours of hard work and preparation were spent in preparation for the "big weekend of the year" — homecoming. The Monogram club co-sponsored with cheerleaders all related festivities for Thursday until Sunday.

The bonfire set the blaze for the homecoming parade and exciting game with William Fleming on Friday. The game featured an announcement of the queen and her court. Climax was the crowning of the royalty at the annual formal dance in her honor.

Directing the fun and fundraising were Coaches Dave Brown and George Carter.

The selling of programs before football and basketball games was undertaken.

Through the efforts of the Girl's Athletic Association, the girls' physical education faculty and a group of responsible students, a comprehensive program of girls' sports has been organized this year. For interested girls, a wide variety of sports are now taught and played on the field, in the gym, and on the courts.

Intramural, as well as inter-school contests, played after school, complemented the physical education department's basic program. Games of field hockey, volleyball, basketball, softball, and tennis were played by enthusiastic teams.

Gymnastics also were promoted. Leading the G.A.A. were a number of juniors: Roseanna Garcia, Beverly Turner, Pat Dalton, Joan Harold, Kaye Eanes and Lynn Bailey. They had the responsibility of totaling the records for each member and of recording points. With over 75 girls participating in a typical single afternoon of basketball games, their job was a big one!

ICT, VOT Offer Challenging Work Experience for Ambitious Students

Expanding, organizing, replacing the obsolete and antiquated with the young and modern, Danville Industry is changing, and progressing. And with this progress comes a need for young men and women, skilled in the crafts of machines and clerical work.

VOT and ICT programs are striving to meet this demand. Preparing the young men and women of today with the skill and experience, necessary for the jobs of tomorrow, the ICT and VOT enables students to obtain an education while they are being trained in skills essential for future careers in an industrialized society.

Supplementing classroom instruction with on-the-job training, the Industrial Co-operative Training program and Vocational Office Training program are ever expanding.

Fundamentals of industry and business are presented, job-experience and training are being offered through local companies.

Besides enjoying the advantages of supervised training ICT and VOT students create a better relationship between employer and employee.

Y-Teens Promote Various Activities Subservient to Community, School

Meet tomorrow's woman today. She is a Y-Teen.

Endlessly varied, club programs and projects helped her gain a deeper insight into current problems of our society, as well as plenty of experience in practical things. Panel discussions on controversial issues, demonstrations on how to apply makeup, and trips to local points of interest often filled the agenda. Classes open to Y-Teens ranged from tennis and judo to art and dance. A weekly trim-gym was also held.

In order to raise money for service projects and a trip to the beach, club members sold candy, Y-Teen pencils, potato chips, and car litter-bags. They earned additional money by holding bake sales as well as an old-fashioned bazaar, featuring hand-made items from all over the world.

Hi-Y Strives to Extend Ideals, Aspirations of YMCA to High School

"ROTS OF RUCK! Don't you know it's top secret!" exclaims Coach Ralph Wall, sponsor of the Confederate, as he grabs Richard Greene (President of the rival Capital) and asks Jim Zahrn (president of Confederate) if he's been hounding information.*

Addition of one new club marked this year's Hi-Y organizations as growing and prosperous. The newly chartered Continental Hi-Y resulted in a total of five individual clubs.

Goals centered around the development of strong Christian character and the maintenance of high standards in the home, school and community. Special functions for the year were geared with these ideas in mind.

Members sold tickets and participated in a pancake supper at the fairgrounds, and magazines were collected to be delivered to hospitals. Basketball and Volleyball leagues were formed, through which the boys tested their abilities against each other.

The highlight of spring was the annual visit to the model General Assembly in Richmond.

Coach Pugh Lauds Tenacious Defense, Has High Hopes For Next Year

"We had a young team, mostly underclassmen. When a team starts between twenty and twenty-five juniors and lists that many more sophomores and juniors on the team roster, it's a young team." This was the comment of Head Coach Alger Pugh on the varsity football team at GW and its prospects for next year.

"There were seven seniors on our team, though, and I feel they deserve more credit than they got. We had a good year and it was largely because of their leadership." Pugh singled out linemen of this year, Julius Parris, and Mike Heldreth, both of whom served as co-captains for the year. He also remarked at the good offensive, and defensive job done by Marion Setliff, who was voted back of the year.

Looking to next year, Coach Pugh stated that, "We won't have too many places to fill. We've got twenty-two juniors who played a lot of football. Our defense will pick up a few new boys." GW's offense next year will include junior lettermen Joe Giles and Mickey Dowdy at quarterback with James Bethel and Ricky Harris at running backs, each having played two years of variety ball. The offensive line features returnees at every position. A very good year is expected from Steve Lester, twice an honorable mention for all-Western District at end.

SIDE-STEPPING FOR extra yards, Ricky Harris (No. 29) evades his Reidsville opponents while Mike Scearce (No. 23) and Joe Giles (No. 12) carry out their prospective assignments. GW went on to win 20-0.

Long Hours of Summer Practice Produce Conditioned Gridmen for Fall

Beginning the season with a win over Reidsville, GW's Cardinals went on to "win when I thought they would and expected them to." Coach Pugh singled out the opening game as "always important. It's always a big boost to begin with a win."

The Cardinals faced tough competition in their regular schedule. The team traveled to Newport News in a bad-fought game that "we should have won." Another now distinct contest saw the Cards face a strong Northern Forsyth team from Winston-Salem. Pugh praised the team for "very good job. Forsyth had a high school All-American, but we were able to contain through most of the game."

In this district, GW fared very well. With a convincing win over Patrick Henry (26-7) plus wins over Halifax County and William Fleming, the Cardinals accounted for the greater part of its wins. Pointing to one of the best performances, Coach Pugh stated that, "We played a very good game against E. C. Glass. I thought we should have won." The Cards played tough, close football and showed they had good defense, fine teamwork.

JV Squad, Aided by Top-Notch Play, Shows Promise, Exemplifies Skill

After a slow start, the JV Football team averaged over twenty points a game to finish with one of the best seasons over the past few years. Coach Dave Brown summarized it as an exceptional season: "Only six touchdowns were allowed in ten games. I only wish we could play those first two games over again."

Many of the players under Coach Brown spent much of the season playing varsity football. Calvin Warner, who carried the backfield load for the first games, spent the second half of the season on the varsity. Quarterback Steve Echols left the JV's, thus David Savage was allowed to show his ability at directing the offense.

Baby Cards Finish Initial Season on GW Gridiron with Convincing Wins

A hard-nosed freshman team, under the guidance of quarterback Alan Brumfield, started and finished their season strongly for a winning season in their first year of Cardinal football. Commenting on the final games, Mr. Charles Stephenson, a coach, was impressed that "the boys were really up for the last games. We expected a winning season and they came on in the last three games to prove us right."

Injuries to three players in the early fall hurt the frosh somewhat, but excellent play by backs Scott Mustain and Boyce Foster and linemen Grady Love, Kenny W. Powell, and Lee Taylor gave the young Cards the breaks they needed. Individual performances also gave Coach Alger Pugh some very good varsity prospects for next year.

BEFORE EACH GAME comes hours of long, hard practice. Just ask Mike Jefferson and Howard Dunn if they ever get tired.

EARLY IN THE year, fifteen basketball hopefuls turned out for varsity tryouts. Here, Coach Kendall instructs them on the advantages of the bounce pass.

Gain Western District Spotlight

Pre-season predictions by the so-called "experts" ranked the young George Washington High School varsity basketball team a meager sixth place in the strong Western District Basketball Loop. However, youth came through and proved the "experts" wrong as the Cards were strong contenders for third place near season's end.

The Cardinals' success began when they stunned Virginia basketball fans by smothering the defending state champions E. C. Glass High School, 59-41. Victories over Patrick Henry and Jefferson Senior soon followed and the Cardinals found themselves in the Western District spotlight.

Along with these victories came tremendous crowds as the team was well-supported at home and away.

With only six seniors on a thirteen man squad, Coach Ben Kendall relied easily on juniors and sophomores. The seniors were Mike Baker, Rick Bendall, Ray Jackson, Mike Jefferson, G. W. Willis and Andy Bridgforth.

The juniors were Tommy Anderson, Mickey Dowdy, Howard Dunn, Maynard Reynolds and Harry Whitt. They were aided by sophomores Steve Smoral, and Ned Wiseman.

Howard Dunn led all scorers with a 15.3 point per game average. He also pulled down 13 rebounds per game. Reynolds led in assists with 25. Steve Smoral had a 48.7% field goal percentage, and senior Rick Bendall was the Cards' defensive star.

IN THE HIGHSPOT of the year, the Cardinals defeated E. C. Glass, defending V.H.S.L. State Champions. Whitey Whitt shoots over the outstretched hand of Clark Wingfield as Mitch Garbee and Maynard Reynolds anxiously watch.

DURING A TENSE, last minute time-out, J.V. basketball coach Dave Brown briefs the Cards with game-winning strategy invaluable tips.

"They're a real good ball club," was Coach Dave Brown's Comment in describing his 1967-68 Junior Varsity basketball team.

Players who were singled out by Coach Brown for outstanding play were Harvey Willis, for scoring and rebounding, Charlie Davis for rebounding, forwards, Allen Herndon and Richard Adams, and hot-shooting guards Bobby Adams, Phil Daly, and Ricky Wells.

Coach Brown remarked that all of these boys are good varsity prospects for next year, provided they buckle down and practice hard during the summer.

Early Morning Practice, Fine Coaching Mature Freshman Roundballers

The Class of '71 made its basketball debut at George Washington High School this year and emerged successful despite several close losses. The Baby Cards dropped a 29-27 decision to Franklin County due to a cold offense, and they were edged by Roxoboro 60-59. But these defeats did not dampen their spirits as they scored impressive victories over Halifax County, Hargrave Military Academy and Holmes Jr. High School.

The Players who Coach Dick Pruitt felt were responsible for these successes were Allen Brumfield, Ray Womack, Robert Bridgforth, Gary Hodnett, and Larry Coleman.

Eight Returning Lettermen Provide Experience for GW Wrestling Team

Coach Bob Reed, aided by Gene Touchstone, combined the experience of eight returning lettermen with the interest of a number of sophomores and juniors who tried out and came up with an impressive Cardinal Wrestling team.

With only three remaining matches the GW grapplers appeared to be in very good position to capture the Western District championship. As of February 1, GW was in the lead and stood 4-1 in district competition with return matches coming up with Jefferson Senior and William Fleming. But the Cardinal matmen had already beaten both teams by decisive margins earlier in the season.

By the first of February, the GW wrestlers had compiled an overall record of 7-1-1, Larry Thompson (103), Chuck Rawley (120), and Julius Parris (145) remained undefeated. The highlights of the season were a 52-0 roll over Amherst in the season opener and a 47-3 rout of Jefferson Senior. Missing in the '68-'69 season will be Chuck Rawley, Julius Parris, Mike Aaron, Lou Prete, Bruce Mathews, Drew Whittle and Romell Tolbert.

GW Cindermen Use Speed, Size, and Agility Against Tough Competition

HAVE DISCUS WILL travel! Senior Bruce Matthews prepares to hurl, while Gerald Wrenn watches in silent anticipation.

GW cindermen, a strong young team, finished with a "pretty good job toward the end of the season," according to track coach, Dave Brown. "We had some consistent winners and could count on our youngest boys to do their best."

Top point-gainer, as cited by Coach Brown, was Bob Tate, who gained wins in the broad jump, high jump and triple jump. Tate, who was a senior, also sprinted.

High scores in the long-distance also were made by many seniors. Jimmy Ray ran in the mile and two mile, while Gerald Wrenn and John Lovelace turned in good performances for the 880-yard run.

These four, though consistent in bringing in points, were the only members lost by the team. Coach Brown claimed returnees in high jump, pole vault, discus and shot put. In his words, ". . . . on paper we're in pretty good shape. We'll have very good sprinters plus two hurdlers who are just juniors. Our only weakness will be in the distance because our runners were all seniors. I think we can make up the points in the sprints and field events." This evaluation has, so far, proved a valid prediction for the current season. As expected, this sport continues in '68 as "the pride of GW."

Cardinals to Successful Season

Fighting against tough competition, GW's '67 varsity baseball team gained first place in the Western District and placed second in the District tournament. Daily practice, skill and a strong desire to win on the part of all the boys accounted for this bringing home the victories!

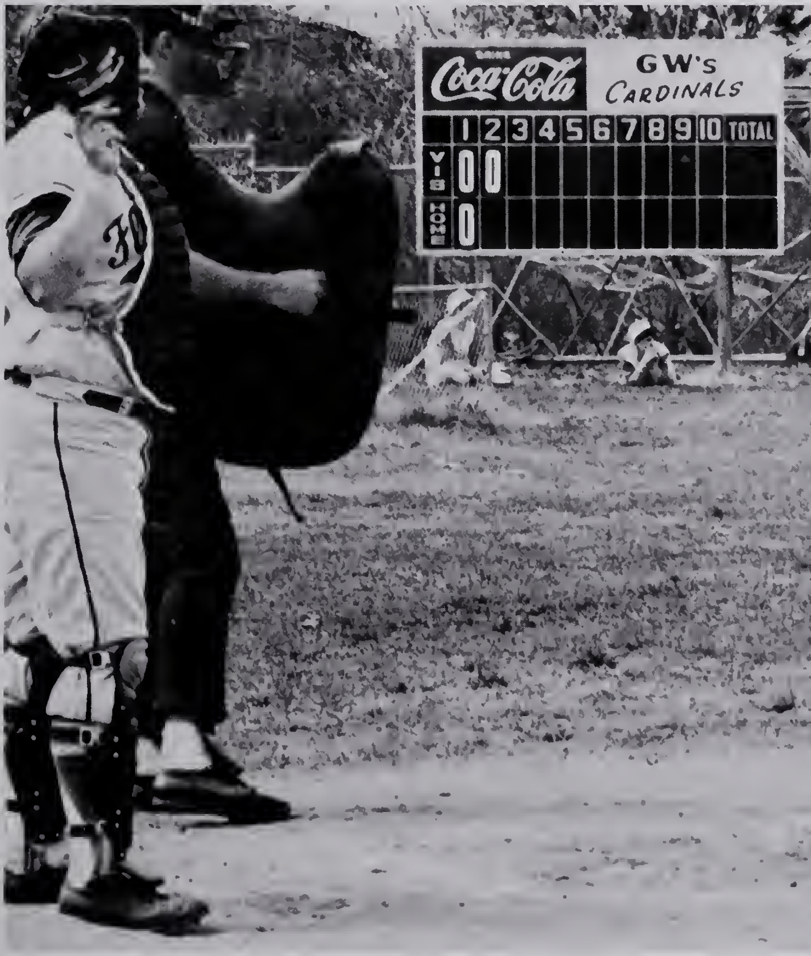
Among many responsible for the ball club's outstanding action was junior veteran Eddie Booth, who pitched a no-hitter against Andrew Lewis. Also, he threw a shutout against Patrick Henry.

Coach Dick Pruitt acclaimed Danny Saunders, the team's first baseman, "the best in the league." Supporting the team is Harvey Willis, a freshman and the leading hitter, who brought in numerous homeruns. Superlative players also were: Eddie Turner, third baseman; George Morris, a field leader; and Ricky Harris, center fielder and another ace hurler.

With graduation causing loss of only three members — Luther Griffin, George Morris and Dickie Thompson — the '68 team boasted the return of twelve lettermen. Coach Pruitt pointed out, as workouts began, that he "has very good material for the 1968 season." Early successes have borne out the anticipated record.

WITH A DELIVERY that brought him many victories, Eddie Booth fires a strike in a game against EC Glass. Serving his third year on the Varsity Baseball team, he excelled not only on the mound but also at the plate. He is expected to play a key role in the success of next year's team.

THE SCOREBOARD REVEALS the truth as Eddie Turner breaks the second-inning tie in a game with William Fleming High School. Idle



GW players look on as Coach Lakey waves in the second-base runner. GW went on to win the game 10-4.

Glovemen's Avid Interest Facilitates New Junior Varsity Baseball Team

Because of a large turnout for varsity baseball, GW started its first season of JV Baseball. Coach Harold Lakey asked for, and got permission to organize the new team in the spring of '67.

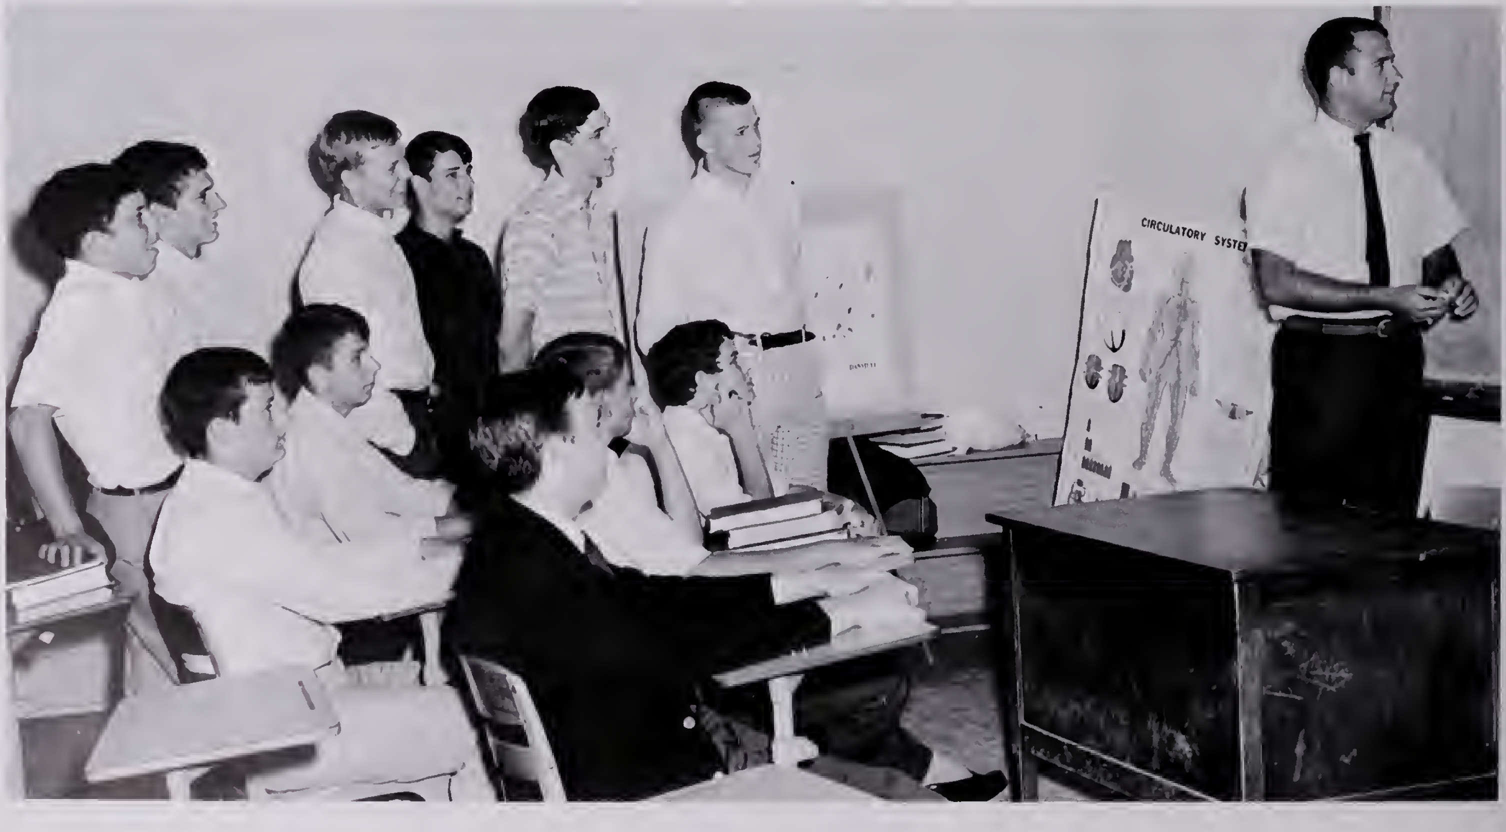
Beginning play by scrimmaging with the varsity team, the JV players gained experience for their performances with local teams. Later in the season, games were scheduled between local teams, including Dan River and Tunstall.

Coach Lakey described the organization of the JV team as "giving many boys a chance to play who would otherwise sit on the bench. We especially want to give the freshmen and sophomores a chance to gain experience."

DURING AN INTERSQUAD scrimmage, Woody Traylor takes a long lead, while Danny Saunders awaits a possible throw from the pitcher.

MANY AND VARIED can be the reflections of Coach Harold Lakey. This year he has gone to "greener pastures" in Richmond as head of the Virginia State Physical Education Department. (His thoughts could possibly be of the JV Baseball team which he originated.)

USING THE CLASSROOM and blackboard, Coach Dick Pruitt (below) explains some finer points of baseball to the newly-formed JV baseball team: David Marshall, Allan McGregor, Brad Sparks, Daryll Farthing, Steve Scearce, (seated); Mike Cassada, Mike Payne, Gary Heady, Pat Dee, Ed Newnam, Kenny Howard, (standing).



A perfect 11-0 record (plus wins at the district and regional tournaments), as well as a "second" at the state tourney, clearly showed how effort, skill and enthusiasm pay off in Varsity golf. Coach George Carter described the outcome as "a truly outstanding season and tournament play."

With four returning lettermen having at least two years of golf to back them up, GW's linksmen are confident and prepared to make this year their best season. First position player, Rick Bendall, who was voted "Golfer of the Year" by his teammates, is a veteran starting his fourth year. In his third year is junior Steve Tucker, who captured medalist honors at both the state and regional tournaments. Rounding out the team is Mike Kilgore, a senior. Like Steve, Mike is returning for his third year.

Consistent playing and low scoring characterize the golfers' abilities revealed at every game. "Things look great," according to Coach Carter, who, with the linksmen, is eagerly looking forward to the new season.

Veterans Spark GW Netmen to Winning Season

OUTSTANDING PLAYERS ON the GW Tennis Team, John Borden and Kelly Furgurson, pair their talents in an exciting Doubles Match.

With four returning starters and one of the best turnouts for prospective players, the GW tennis team had, in the words of Coach Ben Kendall " . . . a good season. The boys played well and won when I expected them to win."

The netmen captured fourth place in the region because of the skill and effort of the four boys sent. They were Kelly Furgurson, John Borden, Steve Smoral and Mike Kelly. During the spring of '67, John Borden received the coveted trophy as Most Valuable Player, which was awarded him by the tennis players' votes. Coach Kendall cited the excellence of Borden's tournament play as well as that of Furguson, who was a four year veteran.

Looking forward to next spring, Coach Kendall hopes to field another competitive team. "Our prospects are the best in years. Because of city-wide, hard surfaced tennis courts, we had the best turnout ever. With the increased interest in tennis, we should have even more boys this year."

Female Racketeers Show Talent in First Season, Promise for the Future

Interest, effort and enthusiasm took credit for the success of the 1967 Girls' Tennis Team. Ten girls showed their skill as "netwomen," in playing two matches with E. C. Glass, Halifax, Chatham Hall, Dan River and Averett College. They finished with a 2-5 record.

After this successful debut, Mrs. Clara Ripley, coach, claims, "There should be a larger turnout this year, in fact, some girls started practicing in September." Last year, thirty-five tennis hopefuls showed up to contend for one of the positions on the team.

Lost on last year's team because of graduation were Margaret Hoffman (No. 1), Elizabeth Slaughter (No. 2), Nancy Fitzgerald, Nancy Newlin (No. 3), and Helga Marienfeldt. The five returning girls are Carolyn Carter, Diane Crawley, Karen Dorman, Susan Falk and Clare McMann.

Better tennis facilities throughout Danville continue to encourage participation in this active and exciting sport. Girls' tennis has a bright future at GW, with the '68 team benefitting from the experiences and training of last season.

COMBINING GRACE AND ability, Margaret Hoffman the top talent of the Girls' Tennis Team, returns a hard serve.

DURING A THRILLING moment, Nancy Fitzgerald, member of the Girls' Tennis Team, charges the net to return a forehand smash.

RIVERS

Shaping . . . shimmering . . . surprising . . . with high hopes for a future in further study or in actual work situations, seniors emerge as more mature citizens, ready to tackle the many problems inevitably lying ahead. Marching forever onward, never stopping, the process of growth and development is as unbounded for a school as for a city. Constantly there is constructive inter-action, neither individualized nor static. Supporting each other, the single elements, each with its characteristic excellence, work together for meaningful progress, a future marked by limitless opportunities.

Educational growth is not confined by classroom walls nor by formal teaching. It will continue either in a school of books or in a school of life. Learning continues . . . understanding increases.

Always a river flows with the purpose of reaching the wide open sea. Seniors have reached their hoped-for goal . . . graduation. The future is theirs . . . theirs to fill with accomplishments, satisfaction and peaceful, God-directed attitudes toward their fellowmen, their country.

GUESS WHO'S WHO AT STRATFORD COLLEGE THIS YEAR . . .

Three outstanding '67 graduates of George Washington High School.

If you remember, Debby Holley was a varsity cheerleader and member of the CHATTERBOX staff. Becky Scott was a Homecoming attendant and a member of the National Honor Society. And Nancy Jarvis was a lettergirl and vice-president of the Spanish Club.

All three are freshmen at Stratford this year —a 115-year-old woman's college on the move.

Debby, Becky and Nancy will be able to receive degrees in programs including art, elementary education, government and politics, humanities, fine arts, Spanish, English, history and biology.

Nancy plans to spend her junior year studying Spanish at the University of Valencia, an affiliated university in Spain. Debby and Becky aren't sure about their majors yet. They may transfer after two years, or they may graduate with Stratford's Class of '71.

Whatever their later plans are, all three girls are happy to be Stratford Girls . . . you can be one too.

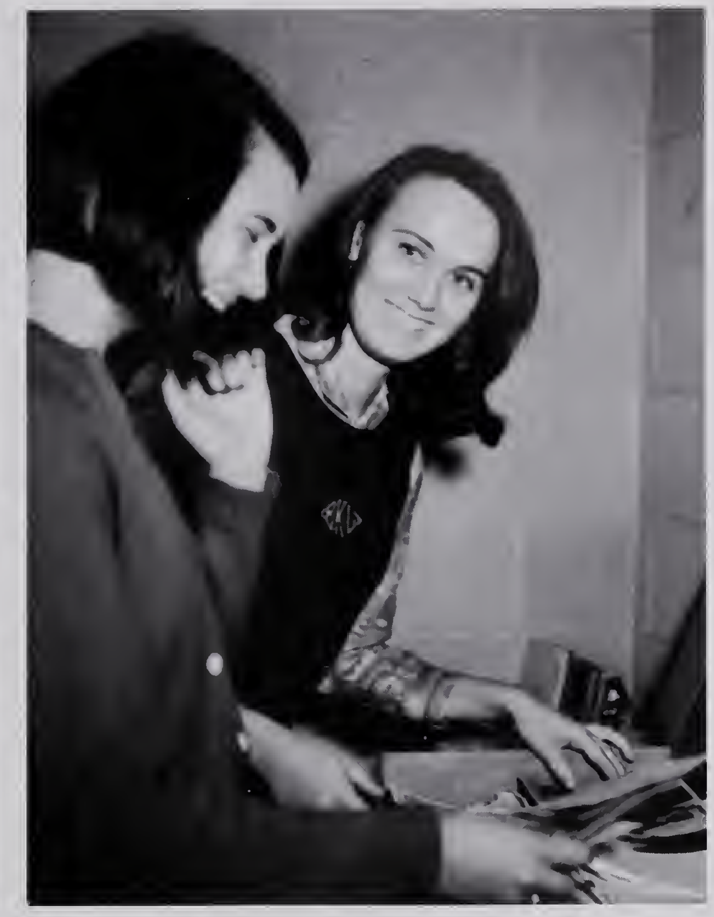
DIDN'T ANYONE EVER tell Libby Lou Hodges and Bobby Willeford that three is a crowd? GW's 1967 Homecoming Dance was a success even for third partners!

A BALANCING TRICK for a pile of books challenges Debbie Haynes before she joins other friends in a break from schoolwork.

TAKING TIME TO pause in front of the Alma Mater, Cathy Gambrell and Susan Albright are in no hurry to go to class.



HAPPINESS FILLS THE CAVALIER room as the deadline for the yearbook draws near. Editors Bonnie Kushner and Betsy Craig are already anticipating their visit to the Senior Lounge.

WITH A SLY grin, J. D. Carter watches as Kirk Bidgood sells a box of GW stationery to Ann Johnson in the JV-cheerleaders project.

AMONG EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES are those classified as Community Service, which include Red Cross Volunteer Work. Blue Stripe girls, Linda Calos and Linda Beaver, take two Roman Eagle Senior Citizens for a stroll.

FREQUENT SIGHT IN GW'S halls — underclassmen stopping to talk before reporting to class! Chatting are Sylvia Douglas, Joan Moore, Teresa Sanders, and Debbie Harr, and the subject is boys?"

"THE GIRLS WATCH the boys who watch the girls go by." (Is this what Capsen Reynolds, Nancy Drumwright, and Diane Perkins are doing?)

LOCKERS ARE GOOD for keeping books and for storing "goodies". The latter category is of interest to Walter Pattisall (left) and George McCormick.

EXCITED OVER THE victories won during the football season, Donna Bowles points out a real challenge ahead on the basketball schedule. (Would it be Patrick Henry?)

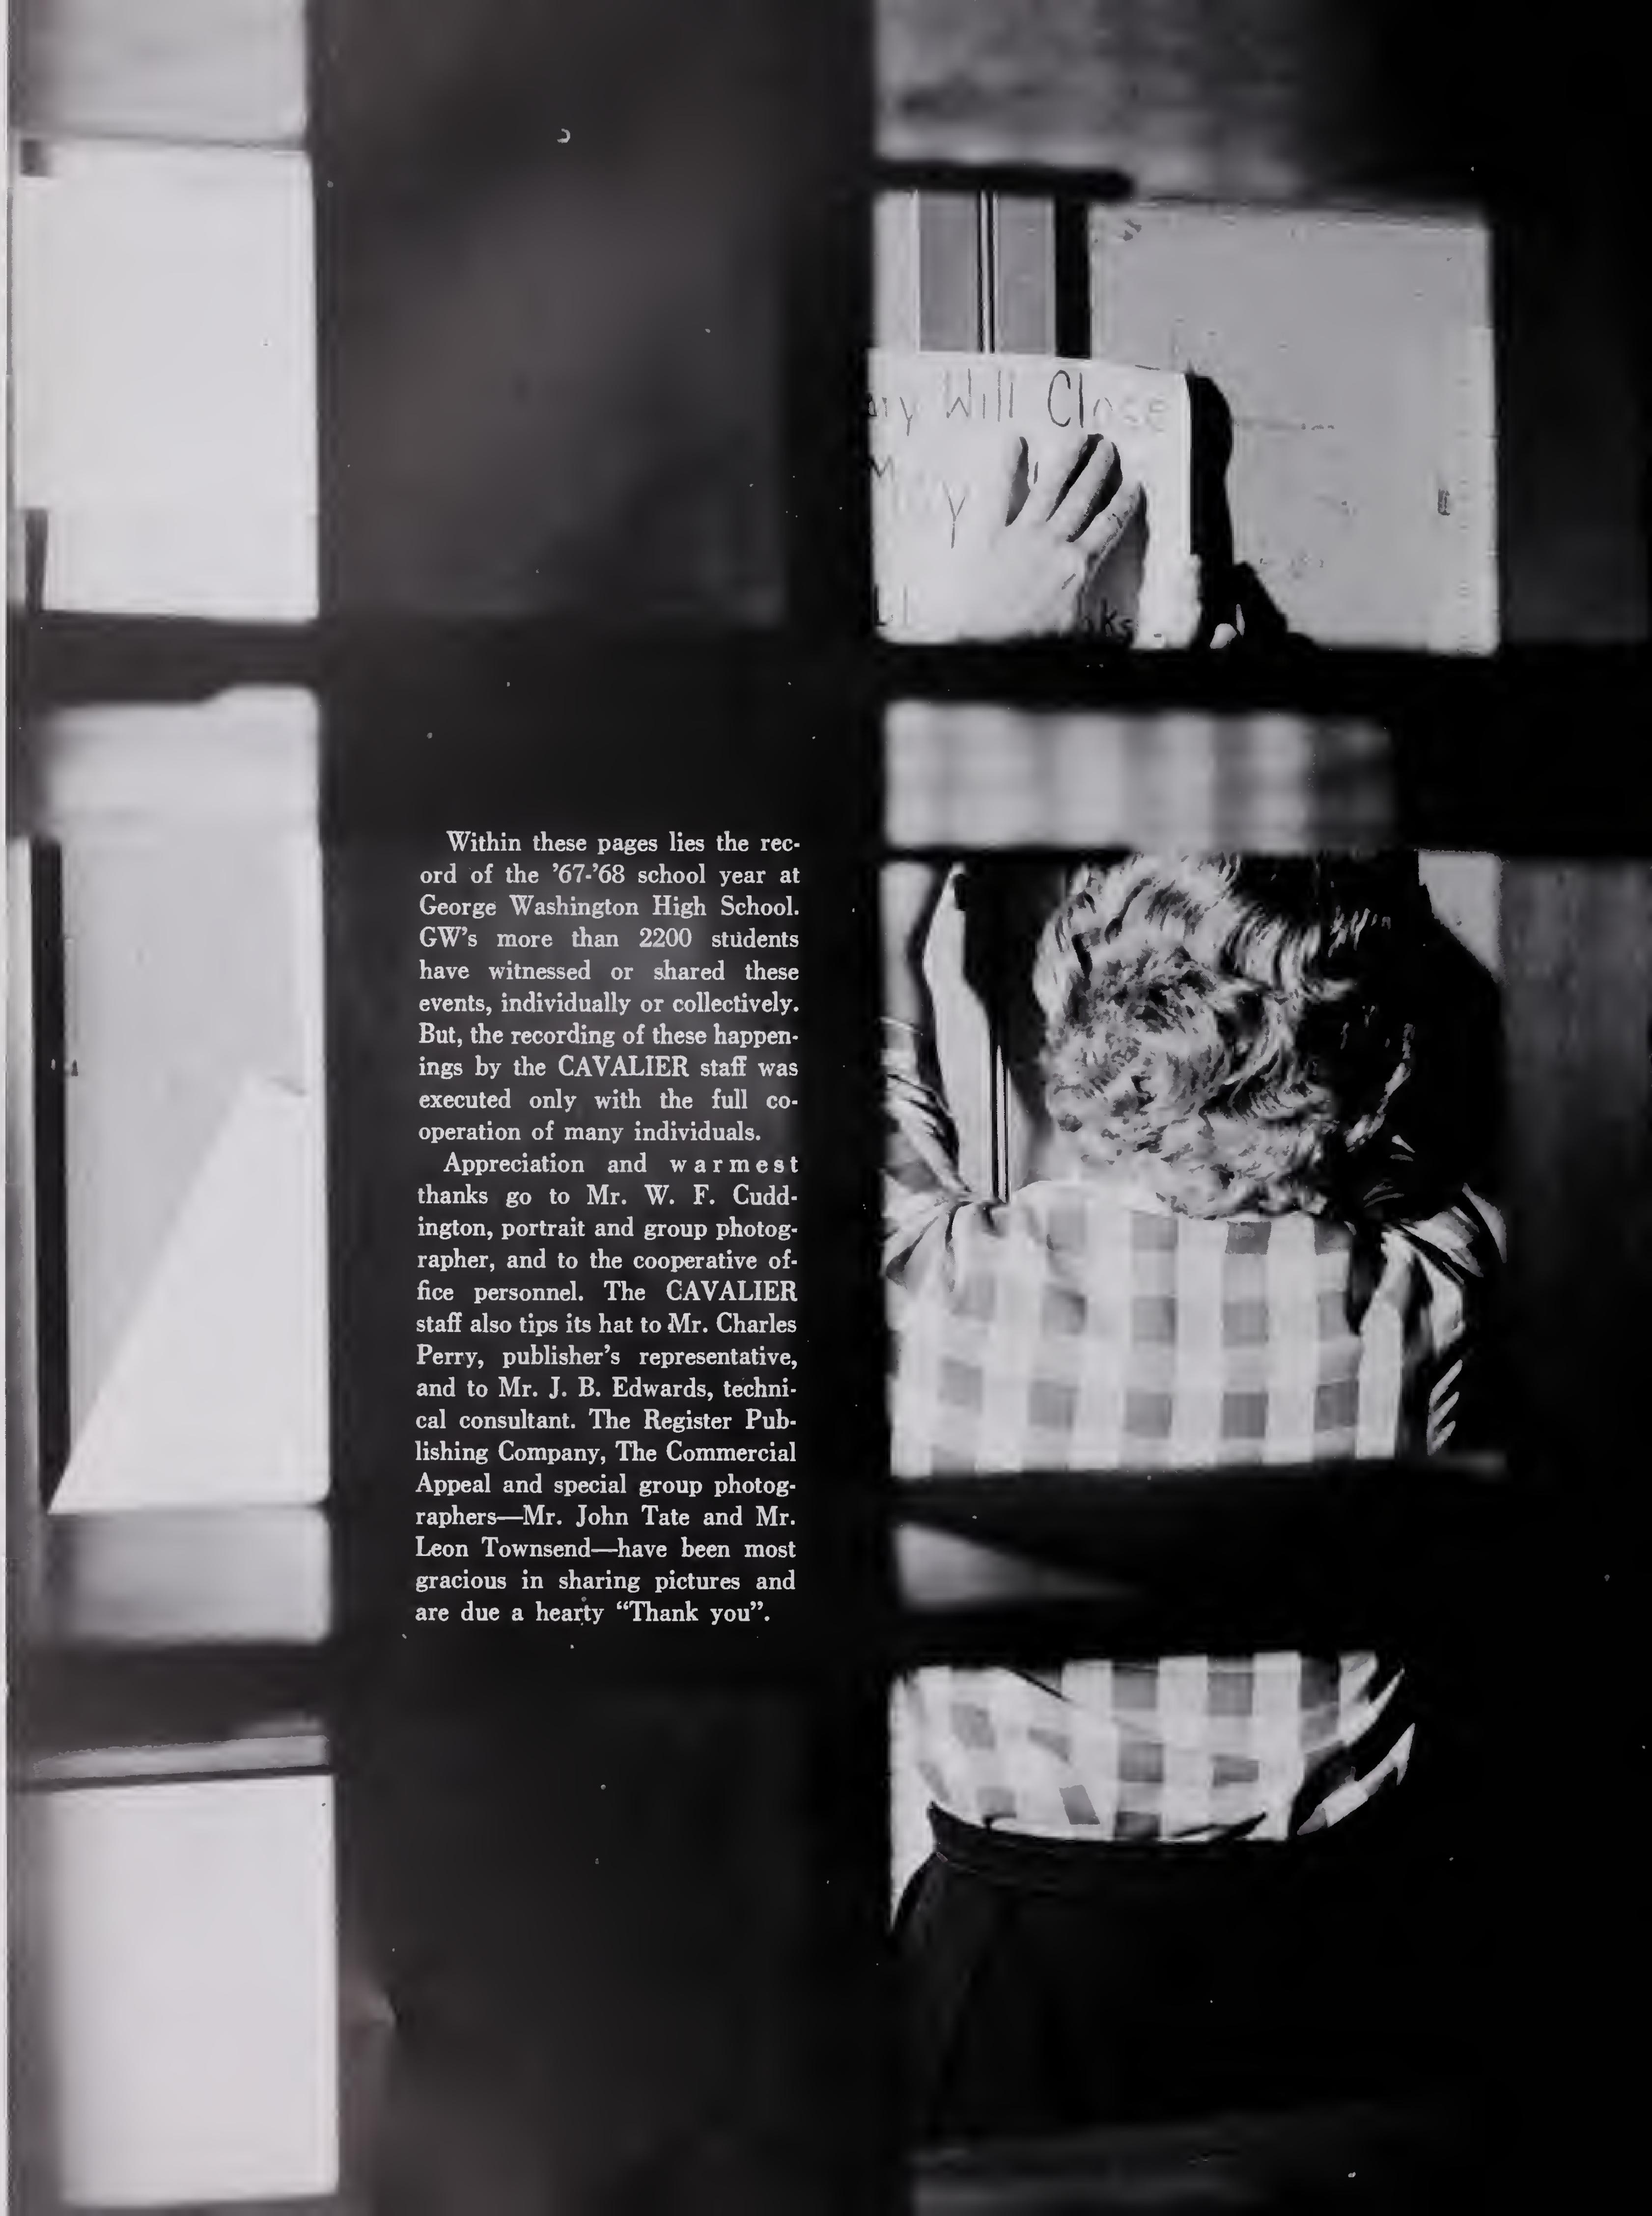
"CAUGHT!" ROGER COOK, CAVALIER OGRE!

BUZZ . . . BUZZ . . . BUZZ . . . Step to it girls! Margaret Bradley and Wanda Johnson stride a lively pace to their next class as the tardy bell rings out omniously.

"DON'T BE SCARED. Mr. Christopher is only taking a mid-day siesta," Diane Reynolds kids as she dares Margaret Berkley to beard the lion in his den (the Hallowed Conference Room!)



Within these pages lies the record of the '67-'68 school year at George Washington High School. GW's more than 2200 students have witnessed or shared these events, individually or collectively. But, the recording of these happenings by the CAVALIER staff was executed only with the full cooperation of many individuals.

Appreciation and warmest thanks go to Mr. W. F. Cuddington, portrait and group photographer, and to the cooperative office personnel. The CAVALIER staff also tips its hat to Mr. Charles Perry, publisher's representative, and to Mr. J. B. Edwards, technical consultant. The Register Publishing Company, The Commercial Appeal and special group photographers—Mr. John Tate and Mr. Leon Townsend—have been most gracious in sharing pictures and are due a hearty "Thank you".
